University Plans 'Energy Day,' Expects Annual Savings Will Top $2.5 Million

Can individuals make a difference in conserving energy at an institution as large as Princeton University?

Members of the university's faculty, staff and student body will get a chance to find out this Wednesday, "Energy Day" at Princeton.

"We hope that on Energy Day people will try to be conscious of their use of energy," said Michael E. McKay, assistant to the director of Princeton's engineering and construction department. Mr. McKay and others will monitor the university's consumption of fuel and electricity Wednesday, and then report to members of the university community on how well they did.

No one will be asked to do anything drastic on Energy Day, according to Mr. McKay. "We would prefer that they not do anything unusual; we don't want people trying to work in the dark or postponing a laboratory experiment that will use a lot of energy. We just want to get a picture of how much we can cut our energy consumption under normal circumstances when everyone is cooperating to avoid energy waste." Mr. McKay thinks the potential saving may be great as 15 percent.

In a letter to all university personnel, Eugene J. McPartland, general manager of planning, plant and properties at Princeton, listed various ways employees could conserve energy:

- Turn off lights when leaving a room, even if it's for a short period of time;
- Use desk lamps instead of overhead lights;
- Minimize the use of electrical equipment such as pencil sharpeners, coffee makers, copying machines, etc.;
- Turn off typewriters, calculators and dictating equipment when not in use;
- Shut off unused fume hoods in laboratories;
- Keep thermostats at 65 degrees.

Although these seem like small measures, energy savings could be sizable, Mr. McKay said. Estimating that turning off idle typewriters alone, campuswide, might save up to $2,000 worth of electricity per year. "Our emphasis is not merely one of saving the university money," he says. "More importantly, this is a chance to conserve our increasingly scarce resources — and why not do so?"

Princeton's energy expenditures for next year are expected to be $7.2 million. A more telling statistic is the growing percentage of the university's budget this figure represents: in 1973, energy accounted for 2.2 percent of the budget; in 1980, energy's slice of the pie is twice as large, 4.4 percent. (The total operating budget for Princeton's main campus in 1979-80 is about $125 million.)

Yet in that same period of time, since 1973, Mr. McKay estimates that Princeton has saved approximately 25 percent through its energy conservation program. This fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1980, the program is expected to save over $2.5 million. Without the conservation measures, he estimates that Princeton would have used 8.3 million

Revised Plans for Princeton's Center Are Unveiled; Palmer Square, Inc. Has More Changes in Mind

Princeton's center, as unveiled by Venturi and Rauch Monday and Tuesday nights, would begin at the east with a 100-unit apartment complex for the elderly, set back from a new Library Plaza and would look westward down a Hulfish Street vista to Chambers Street, where a 500-car garage on "Chambers South" would serve as anchor to the whole. (See map, page 6.)

Since the consultants' work is a detailing of ideas hammered out in many citizens Steering Committee meetings last spring and summer, it was startling to hear Eugene McPartland, for Palmer Square, Inc. (and, therefore, for Princeton University) say, almost diffidently:

"The Inn expansion is a bit fuzzier now. It will be more rooms than restaurant and public space. The expansion may have to be closer to the present building, which could affect that plaza."

It could, in fact, wipe it out. Denise Scott-Brown, of the V. & R. firm, had shown slides of a Hulfish roadbed converted to pedestrianism, with a plaza and small amphitheatre where the Nassau Inn swimming pool now is ("a quiet plaza — no rock and roll"), a covered arcade as an entrance to the expanded Nassau Inn (where the Playhouse parking lot now is), and enough covered and open spaces for a 12-month space which is, as Ms. Scott-Brown explained, "what the people wanted."

But Mr. McPartland said it might not be economical to have the two sections of the Nass so far apart.

"Each time we think we have a handle, PSI has thrown in another monkey-wrench!" exclaimed Ann McGoldrick, a Steering Committee member. "First, it was housing; they took that away and gave us offices. Now this basic change thrown at us changes the whole concept. As hard as we work, PSI does it to us, again!"

"I am disturbed, too," Mayor Robert W. Cawley said grimly.

Mr. McPartland said PSI still does not have figures which will show whether PSI and its majority stockholder, Princeton University, can afford the expansion at all. He said he hopes to have them by a January 17 public hearing.

The new Library Plaza would be separated from the PCH housing by a low wall. There would be a pool in the corner, near Bill's Men's Shop, shade trees, lots of benches and a place where retired elderly could listen in on a library story hour. Tables and shuffledboard could be part of the Plaza, Ms. Scott-Brown suggested.

The PCH building would be tall, but set back from North Tulane, with car access on the east, behind the North Tulane houses. Stores in the PCH building, fronting on Spring, might be the kinds of convenience stores elderly tenants would need, she said.

"If anyone is upset at this plan," Ms. Scott-Brown remarked, "It's probably Palmer Square residents with west windows."

Princeton's Center

"If anyone is upset at this plan," Ms. Scott-Brown remarked, "It's probably Palmer Square residents with west windows."

The 500-car Chambers South garage could be designed to let in some light and to keep the trees, she added. It is five "short" stories high, with some parking below ground level and on the roof.

James Schmitz, a V & R., warned of a "significant" increase in Chambers traffic, and a possible need to install a traffic light, and to alter the Chambers and Vandeventer intersections with Nassau.

"This plan is practical," declared Donald Evans, who lives in Palmer Square. "Chambers is a business street, after all."

A Cafe, etc. In smaller crannies of the plan would be: an open-air cafe in the extreme northwest (about at the corner of the present Playhouse lot and Robeson) a twin theatre balancing it on the other side and a more sheltered One Palmer Square plaza.

V. & R. would remove hedges and trees from the Palmer Square "Tiger" plot to provide a more open introduction to the area.

Mrs. McGoldrick urged a dollar commitment from PSI and the Borough. Mr. Schmitz said he would have rough cost estimates by the January hearing, with suggestions about financing sources.

Mayor Cawley said the Borough will probably do garage financing since it can get better interest rates, and then might lease the garage back to PSI. The Library Plaza, he added, would be the Borough's, financially.

Margen Penick, chairman of the Planning Board, protested that the PCH location cost the town short-term parking spaces, and said the site offered little privacy for PCH residents.

Alan Frank, who owns Langrock's, said he objected to "outside organizations coming in here and telling us what to do," and he said darkly that "unless something good happens, there won't be a Central Business District."

Pressed by Mayor Cawley, he admitted that he liked "80 percent" of the V. & R. plan.

Monday night's presentation of the plans was for the Steering Committee, Tuesday's was for the Planning Board.

Mr. Sander pressed PSI to confer quickly with V. & R. on possible changes in the two Nassau Inn sections because, as he told PSI, "that east-west Hulfish axis has a lot to do with the plan and we haven't much time." Mayor Cawley quickly seconded Mr. Sander's urging.

Most Planning Board members were worried about quick drop-offs of children at the public library. There is -- deliberately -- no road around Library Plaza to make a moat between it and the library and PCH. The board questioned the advisability of any loop in and out of Wiggins near the Public Service building, as a pick-up road.

When someone proposed cutting back PCH to make such a road, Mayor Cawley said quickly that he would not accept less than 100 apartments; others said they would accept no more than five stories in height. So the question of picking up children from the library was left on the shelf.

Mrs. Penick elaborated on her proposal of the night before to move PCH to the Chambers North site, a greener and more private spot, but board member Constance Greiff pointed out that the library site was closer to moderately-priced shopping and more suitable for elderly residents, because it was closer to activity.

Mrs. Greiff also responded to the proposal to de-tree Tiger Square. "It's the most-used space in town in hot weather -- don't change it," she advised.

To worries about traffic, Ms. Scott-Brown pointed out that when a town has a university, "the traffic must be fitted into half a town." She urged the board to "try for 75 percent of what you want, and we can come to an agreement, a compromise we can live with."

Civil Rights Commission Marks Its 10th Anniversary, Noting Some Welcome Progress, with Other Goals Yet to Be Achieved

Formed back in the days when everybody said "Negro" and the word "black" was almost a slur, the Princeton Joint Civil Rights Commission celebrated its tenth anniversary this week. And looked ahead...

"Blatant discrimination has diminished," observed Albert O. Campbell, who has been on the Commission since it was formed. "In housing, especially. I remember when our first chairman, who was black, had trouble finding a house to buy. Now, it's mostly the money!"

But Mr. Campbell, who has lived in Princeton 40 years, warned that there is still discrimination. "We mustn't fool ourselves -- it's always here," he said.

Max Blumenfeld, another who has served on the Commission from the beginning, agreed.

"It's a never-ending job," he remarked. "There is always a pool of people who can't accept the idea that people should be treated as human beings, regardless of color, nationality, sex, or whatever."

Only One Case in Court. At the start, the Commission was concerned with housing, and it was instrumental in obtaining equal-opportunity housing ordinances in both Borough and Township. Mr. Blumenfeld says there has been only one case -- concerning a landlord who refused to rent to a black tenant -- that actually got to Borough magistrate's court. The tenant won. There have, of course, been cases settled out of court.

Police-community relationships were tender and sensitive in 1969, but it has been a long time since racial accusations have been made against the police. Joan Hill, executive director of the Civil Rights Commission says:

"Our two police chiefs are great! They're never a problem, never, and they always try their best to resolve any difficulty."

The Commission has watched the growth of the women's movement, and Ms. Hill points out that when the group was formed, in 1969, there were not nearly so many women in the work force as there are now.

"It's better now, for women," she says, "although it's still not where we want it -- Princeton banks are better than banks in other towns about lending money to women, but how many women professors are there at Princeton?"

Welcome Progress. Ms. Hill is particularly proud of the Commission's link with the Witherspoon-Jackson Corporation, formed to make it easier for black families to buy houses. Within a two-year period, she says the corporation has bought three houses and sold them to black Princeton families. She also points to the Commission's employment register. Firms like Squibb, Educational Testing Service, RCA and Princeton University send her their employment bulletins and she tries to link up job

"Our thrust now, is affirmative action," she says. "The Commission will begin to encourage employers to hire minorities, even though they may not be required to under the law."

John Bleimeier is chairman of the Commission -- he was a college student when it was formed, in 1969. He sees the rights of aliens as a future area of work for all civil rights groups.

Aliens to be Aided. "Aliens are entitled to a fair hearing -- but they don't always get fair treatment in advance and they may have been subject to illegal house searches and the like," he says. "There are a lot of aliens in Princeton, and this may be our next new problem."

Mr. Bleimeier has highest praise for Ms. Hill. "She is so very important!" he exclaimed. "She grew up in Princeton, she knows everybody in town and she can talk with people who bring in a complaint, because she probably knows them personally. I can't praise her highly enough."

Mr. Blumenfeld chuckles about the hiring of Ms. Hill.

"I didn't want a white liberal-type in that job -- I wanted a black," he says. "Our big problems were in the Witherspoon-John area, and we needed someone people who live here could relate to. And you know what? Some others on the Commission said I was a bigot!"

to construct an office-building on Witherspoon and Henry, where Corner House has been located.

The Medical Center's presentation will be continued at the next Zoning meeting, Wednesday, December 26 at 7:30. The meeting place will be announced.

The Center plans a four-story, 40,000-square-foot building for doctors' offices, practical nursing classrooms, the out-patient service that accounts for 70 percent of the Center's X-ray work, and meeting rooms. For the portion of the building devoted to offices, the Center needs a use variance because offices are not a permitted use in that residential zone. The Center must also obtain variances related to height and setbacks.

Zoning chairman William O'Shaughnessy asked Mr. Kauffman whether Center Trustees had ever asked Borough and Township governing bodies for a zoning change that would take the hospital complex out of the residential zone, and relieve zoning boards of continuing hospital requests. Christopher Tarr, attorney for the Center, said the institution had made such a request to the land-use committee of the Planning Board, which is working toward a new Master Plan.

Divided We Stand. The Center straddles the Borough-Township line. Mr. Kauffman said it used to bisect the delivery room, affecting the birthplace of babies born in the hospital.

Mr. Kauffman reminded the board that the 1968 Township Master Plan limits the hospital to the Witherspoon-Franklin-Heory-Harris quadrangle. He said the Center "has no plans to exceed this area assigned to us," although Zoning Board members pointed out that the Center's rehabilitation unit ("Merwick") and its mental health unit (Princeton House) are both outside that quadrangle.

The present Medical Arts Building, with offices for 50 doctors, was planned in 1953 and, in three increments plus the original structure, now has 27,000 "rentable" square feet. The Center tries to break even on rentals, with a "reasonable return," Mr. Kauffman said, in reply to a question from the board. Tenants are asked to have only minimal lab equipment and no X-rays, as a support for the hospital.

A 1978 survey of the 275 doctors and dentists who have staff privileges at the Medical Center, turned up 32 requests totalling 59,200 square feet, Mr. Kauffman reported. He said he had received 27 applications, probably totalling 50 doctors, for offices in the new structure. Of these, some seven percent are already in the Medical Arts Building. Others practice in "fringe areas," and Mr. Kauffman mentioned Lawrenceville.

Certificate Needed. Mr. Kauffman compassed the service area of the hospital -- from Jamesburg, Kendall Park, Belle Mead, Hopewell and Lawrence, serving three counties, and Mrs. Peggy Kilmer, who described herself as "a Community Park School parent," asked, "Who plans the medical needs of the Princeton area?"

Mr. Kauffman explained that the hospital, with consultants, did the planning until

Just Wait a Bit

Care for skiing?
Not quite yet.
Ground still has
November wet.

All that talk of light snow last weekend proved 100 percent inaccurate, and November went by without producing its two-inch average (which had, of course, been accounted for as far back as October 10).

The somewhat sub-normal temperatures of the past few days are about to be replaced with something milder. By Friday, readings in the 50s are expected, and lows may not penetrate the freezing level. Hold those skis and sleds for a while.

1970. Now, he said, hospitals need a "certificate of need" from the state in order to expand. That certificate will be required if the Center itself owns the new building, he said. If offices are sold, condominium style, it will not be required.

When asked why the Center plans a 40,000-square-foot structure when doctors said they needed 59,200, Mr. Kauffman replied, "The Township can't take care of all the doctors!" and he added, "We may some day return and ask you for permission to raze the present Medical Arts building and build a multi-story one."

Board member Lucy McKenzie said "When your garage variance was granted in 1977, you were asked if you planned any further construction and you said 'No.' When did you begin planning for this building?"

Mr. Kauffman said 1978; however, the building was in parent, "the Center's five-year plan, but not with high priority, he added.

Charles Sperling, attorney for Center neighbors, presented a petition with 27 signatures opposing granting of the use variance. He said that, even with the new garage, "streets are completely solid with cars every day, most of the cars connected with the hospital."

Mr. Kauffman acknowledged this, and questioned whether police were enforcing the two-hour parking limit.

Traffic a Problem. Ann McGoldrick, school board representative on the Municipal Liaison Committee, said that although she was not appearing as an objector, she was concerned about traffic, and the closeness of Community Park School.

To audience questions concerning the Center's location in a residential area, Mr. Kauffman replied that the hospital started there in 1919, and houses grew up around it. He told the Zoning Board that

BOARD SAYS "NO!"

To Classification. A proposal to classify New Jersey's public schools has brought the wrath of Princeton's school board down upon the heads of the state Board of Education.

Princeton's board, in a letter to the state board, declares its opposition to two aspects of the state proposal: "the pigeonholing or labeling of sizeable groups of children into global categories such as 'approved,' 'unapproved,' etc. and what the Princeton board regards as confusion of the terms 'classification' and 'evaluation.'"

The recommendation to the State Board of Education comes from Commissioner of Education Fred Burke. Mr. Burke recommends classifying schools as "approved," "disapproved" or "approved with reservations." In some cases, an entire district might be swept into one category; in others, an individual school might have a classification different from other schools in the district.

The proposal is related to the state's thorough-and-efficient education law, which requires school districts to set goals and outline the ways they are to be achieved. In

Christmas Appeal Stands at $823.70

From the 1979 TOWN TOPICS Christmas Appeal:

"Alcoholism can be a destroyer of families. For young children, an alcoholic parent means that life is a long nightmare of cruelty, uncertainty, violence. It was that way for 12-year old Christine, an only child with nobody to talk to about her mother's terrifying behavior.

"It was her school that referred Christine -- and her mother -- to Family Service, knowing that treatment of alcoholism is one of the agency's strongest departments. It's a long, often tortuous road that alcoholics and their families must travel, but for Christine and her mother, the way has begun."

Cases such as this are among the many which have been helped -- often in a manner that has brought permanent benefits -- by gifts made to the TOWN TOPICS Christmas Fund. Six days after the 1979 Appeal was published, $823.70 had been received. Every penny contributed goes to those in need of assistance because TOWN TOPICS meets all administrative costs.

Checks should be made payable to the TOWN TOPICS Christmas Fund and mailed to P.O. Box 664, Princeton, or brought to 4 Mercer Street.

essence, the state would be deciding whether schools are doing what they ought to be doing under the T. & E. law.

Princeton's board does not object to the legally-required evaluation, members point out. If the state talks to people within the system and, in effect, says "We don't think you're accomplishing what you said you wanted to do," that's different. But "unapproved" for a district would lump all teachers and pupils in the district -- or the school.

"It is somewhat ironic," the Princeton board's letter states, "that our nation is currently resisting the tendency to label all Iranian nationals in this country under the same category as those who are creating our problem in Teheran. Just as it is not fair to label all of these people among the 'crazies' in Iran, it is not fair to label large groups of children as 'approved' or 'unapproved.'"

"Furthermore," the letter continues, "this runs counter to a basic goal of T. & E. which is individualized instruction rather than mass grouping."

"Our board welcomes an evaluation process which points out both strengths and weaknesses and suggests means for improvement. This is a positive and healthy approach, whereas classification is a threatening procedure which is bound to have an overall negative impact."

The state board is scheduled to act on the matter this Wednesday.

Three Princeton Churches to Ring Bells Daily to Mark Hostages Plight in Iran

Three Princeton churches are responding to a suggestion made by Bruce Laingen, the American Charge in Iran who is being held at the Foreign Ministry, that church bells be rung each noon until the hostages in Iran are released. The suggestion was endorsed by President Carter and brought to the attention of the media by Press Secretary Jody Powell.

St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Nassau and Moore streets, rings the Angelus each noon anyway, but Fr. Evasio DiMarcellis said he would "give a few extra tugs" on behalf of the safe release of the hostages. The Princeton United Methodist Church, Nassau Street and Vandeventer Avenue, said it was glad to ring its bells for the hostages, and a church member offered to come on his lunch hour, climb the ladder and ring them each day.

Bells will also ring from Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street, but the Rev. John Crocker Jr. expressed concern that another directive might be forthcoming "from on high, asking people to cool it," and said Trinity's bells would be rung for a week on a sort of wait-and-see basis. The three churches are the only ones in Princeton with bells.

MAN IS INDICTED

For Teenager Kidnapping.
A 25-year-old Browns Mills resident, Richard Robbins, was indicted last week by a Mercer County Grand Jury for the May 24 kidnapping of a 13-year-old Mount Lucas Road girl.

Robbins was also indicted for aggravated assault October 3 of a Township resident, identified in the indictment as Mrs. Naomi A. Young.

dangerous weapon and possession of a dangerous weapon.

According to Assistant Prosecutor James J. Raywood Jr., Robbins knocked on the door of the teenager's home at 4:45 in the afternoon and ordered her out of the house into his dump truck.

He then took her on an eight and one-half hour ride, traveling as far as the Fort Dix area, before dropping her off at her home at 1:15 in the morning. During the ride, he allegedly threatened the girl by putting a knife to her throat, Mr. Raywood said, taking nicks of flesh from it. Robbins did not sexually molest his victim.

The girl has since had to undergo psychiatric treatment. "It was a terrifying experience for her," Mr. Raywood said. Robbins was also indicted for assault with a Robbins entered the home of Mrs. Young at 10:58 in the morning on the pretext of using the telephone. Mrs. Young said that she allowed him to enter because she recognized Robbins as a man who had worked on her house recently.

Once inside, according to Assistant Prosecutor William Z. Zarling, Robbins pulled a knife. Mrs. Young screamed and grabbed for his arm. The two fell to the floor, struggling.

When her parents came downstairs, Robbins fled from the house. The victim's father supplied police with a license plate number and Robbins was arrested a few hours later by Pemberton Township police. Police found a knife in the back of his station wagon.

HOMES IN O-R ZONE?
 Committee Introduces Ordinance. Township Committee introduced four ordinances last Wednesday night, including one that would permit residential use in an O-R zone.

Hans Sander of the Planning Board came before Committee to provide historical background and present thinking on the proposed ordinance. The area in question is some 420 acres in the northeast section of the Township, around Mt. Lucas and Herrontown Roads, which was zoned for general, professional use in the 1968 Master Plan. Residential use was also permitted until 1977 when it was dropped — no one is quite sure why, Mr. Sander said.

Originally it was thought that the area would attract a large research corporation. It was also thought that the area would provide revenue for the municipality with the least expenditure for municipal services.

Since then, Planning Board members have become better acquainted with the area's sloping terrain and high marsh which place a severe limitation on building, he said. Through the land use committee and the natural resources survey, more has been learned about the subsoil, the drainage capacities and footing conditions, he noted.

The land use committee has recommended a reduction in the original 420 acres to 312 but has added other O-R acreage on Cherry Valley Road, Rosedale Road near the Etli Farm and in the northwest corner of the Township to bring the total to 514. In addition, Mr. Sander explained, the 45 percent floor area ratio is a high enough figure to convince Planning Board members that there would be very little left of the lot except some screen trees and a parking lot.

"We therefore decided to restrict the floor ratio and suggest that optional residential use be permitted," he said. Mr. Sander also discussed the effect of higher density clustering on the area, but the ordinance in question only takes up a change in permitted use. "One thing at a time," Mr. Sander said, smiling.

A number of residents were on hand through his presentation, but were not permitted to air their views that night. The public hearing will be Wednesday, December 12 at 8 in Township Hall.

Another ordinance had to do with setting limitations on sewer gallonage allocations in the Montgomery Township connection. Joseph R. Nini described it as a formalizing of the present policy in regard to allocations to the connection. The public hearing is also set for December 12.

A third ordinance authorizes the purchase of a little over eight acres remaining in the area ratio is a high enough figure to convince Planning acres the Township now owns as open space. The purchase price, under negotiation for over a year, has been set at $92,000, with an additional $1,500 for closing fees. An ordinance establishing no parking on a portion of Mt. Lucas Road to remove a traffic hazard was also introduced and will be voted on December 12.

Committee voted to replace the aging Balcort Drive sewer pumping station at a cost of $21,000. This includes $2,000 for a consultant to look over the design and the size of the outflow pipes with an eye to future development in the area.

In other business, Committee accepted "with very great regret" the resignation of Dean W. Chace from the Joint Recreation Board. Mr. Chace, who cited business travel, will stay on until a replacement can be found. He first went on the Recreation Board 14 years ago and has served on and off ever since.

William J. O'Shaughnessy asked to be relieved from his duties on the Zoning Board after seven years. He had served as chairman and vice-chairman, and his resignation, too, was accepted with "great regret."

Hamilton Meserve of the Great Road, an alternate on the Zoning Board for the past several months was appointed to a permanent position. Committee also passed a resolution in honor of Richard Fowler, longtime member of the Fire Commission who died this past year, expressing gratitude for his years of service.

HOPEWELL MAN ROBBED

By Armed Gunman. A 48-year-old Hopewell resident, an employee of Princeton University's Palmer Lab off Washington Road, was the victim of an armed robbery last week.

Police said the man had left the lab shortly after midnight Saturday and had walked to his car in the lab's parking lot where he discovered his tire was flat.

He was in the process of removing the jack from the trunk of his car, police continued, when he was attacked from behind. The victim later told police his assailant was armed with a small, silver-plated pistol. He was struck about the face with the gun, pushed to the ground and told to keep quiet.

His assailant then reached into the victim's pocket and took out his wallet which contained $420. As the gunman fled on foot, about $120 fell from the wallet, police said.

The suspect was described as black, 25 to 30, slim, wearing dark clothing. The victim was taken to Princeton Medical Center for treatment of abrasions of the face. Det. Gerald Patterson is continuing the police investigation.

PAPERS SET AFIRE

At Cox's Store. Those who get their New York Sunday Times at Cox's Store, 182 Nassau Street, were forced to get them elsewhere this week.

Approximately 30 bundles of papers stacked near the door were set afire early Sunday morning. Police received a call at 3:49 a.m. from a passing motorist that papers in front of the store were on fire.

Heat from the fire shattered a front window before police were able to put out the flames, with extinguishers from their patrol cars. There was also some smoke damage, according to Capt. Theodore Lewis. The papers were destroyed.

"It appears to have been deliberately set," said Capt. Lewis. Ptl. William Hunter of the department's arson squad was called in to assist in the investigation being conducted by Det. Charles Harris.

The plectron (a silent alarm) was sounded last week for a fire at the home of Clifton Strup, 37 Leigh Avenue, where police report that an electric range was emitting excessive heat.

There was no fire. Police add the occupant was not familiar with the operation of an electric range.

Police also responded to a 6:30 plectron call Friday night from the home of Melford C. Bolick, 96 Herrontown Road. But before they could arrive, Mrs. Bolick informed them the fire from an overheated electric cord was out. There was no damage, police said.

Hodding Carter, Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs, will speak in 10 McCosh Hall on the Princeton University campus this Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. under auspices of the Whig-Clio Society.

Mr. Carter has been seen almost daily on television during the past month briefing news media on the United States government's reaction to the constant developments in the Iranian crisis.

ALUMINUM PRAM STOLEN

From University Boathouse. A 10-foot aluminum pram valued at $150 was reported stolen last week from a fenced-in area between the Princeton University boathouse and Carnegie Lake. Frank Bozarth, in charge of the boathouse, told Township police the boat had been stacked - unsecured - along with several others.

A university student reported the theft of her wallet containing about $50 from a desk in her room in 1903 Hall. She told police Friday that the door had possibly been left unlocked.

Another university student lost her wallet containing $18 and several personal checks between 11:30 Saturday night and 2 Sunday morning. She told police the theft took place either at Charter Club or Cloister Inn.

An employee of the Engineering Quadrangle last week listed the theft of her clutch bag containing $10 which she had left in a room in the Quad. The victim is a Borough resident.

A Stanworth resident lost her brown leather bag from the rear carrier of her bicycle last week, while she was riding from Stanworth to the Engineering Quad. She lost $120 and a First National Bank checkbook.

She told police she believes it was taken while she was stopped at the intersection of Witherspoon and Nassau.

Two bicycles were stolen during the weekend from the rear porch of a Maple Street home. One was a girl's blue bike valued at $50, the second a child's small blue and white bicycle worth $50. Both were unlocked, police said.

A brown, 5-speed bicycle with a broken gear cable valued at $85 was stolen last week from the rear of Princeton High School, and a $200 moped owned by a Cleveland Lane resident was taken from the side of the Nassau Inn.

The moped was recovered the following day, when Ptl. William Nathan saw a juvenile pushing a moped on Stockton near Elm Road. He stopped the youth for questioning and learned the moped had been taken from Nassau Inn.

The juvenile, a 16-year old Trenton resident, was later released to his father, who lives in Princeton.

A Mercer Street resident listed the theft of a battery taken from her car while it

HOW TO CHOOSE
A CHRISTMAS TREE
AND KEEP IT FRESH
'TIL YULETIDE!

with Sam deTuro

Woodwinds Associates

The best way to assure yourself of a fresh tree is to select it early, trees are cut at the same time, so the sooner you select yours and get it home to take care of, the better your chances of keeping it fresh. In addition, selections are always better early.

Here are some hints on testing for freshness:

- Rub a finger across the butt, stickiness is a sign of freshness.
- Bounce the stump hard on the ground several times, if needles shed or pull off easily, freshness is gone.
- Watch for patches of browned needles: this means the tree has already started to dry out.
- Look for odor and color: fragrant odor and healthy-looking green needles are further signs of freshness.

Once you have selected your tree, the following suggestions will keep it fresh at home until you're ready to put it up.

- Cut an inch or two off the stump at a slant, and then peel back the bark another inch. (This allows more surface area capable of absorbing liquid).
- Place the tree, upright, in a bucket of cold water, keep in a cool place.
- Occasionally sprinkle water on the needles. (Some people prefer to spray the needles with an anti-transpirant compound.)
- You might also add a cup or two of sugar to the water in the bucket.

Finally, when you bring the tree inside for trimming, be sure to keep it moist by periodically checking the water level in your tree stand.

Thefts of Household Silver Continue Unabated As Latest Haul (Prospect Ave.) Tops $14,000

Princeton home owners would be advised to secure their silver. Another silver theft has taken place in the Township, where police report the loss at $14,650.

Entry to a Prospect Avenue home was gained sometime during a four-day span by breaking a small glass pane in a rear door leading to a new section of the home that has just been built. Once inside, the thief ransacked the dining room, taking all the silver from a buffet. In addition, clothing was taken from three second-floor bedrooms that were ransacked.

Forty-six pieces of Gorham sterling with a mythology pattern were taken, police said, with an estimated 1979 value of $5,000, also a $1,000 silver tray, eight serving pieces ($1,000), a pair of 1740 gravy boats ($2,000), a sterling five-light Victoria candelabra ($3,000). Also, a nine-inch sterling Paul Revere bowl ($1,000) and an antique bowl, brass candle sticks, five pieces of Staffordshire china, a nine-inch statue, porcelain duck and two silver ladles with a combined value of $1,150.

Det. Samuel Bianco is continuing the initial investigation by Ptl. Howard Sweeney.

A FitzRandolph Road home was entered during the weekend by someone who forced open a rear door. Several rooms were ransacked.

Taken were assorted pieces of men's and women's jewelry valued at $1,300, 14 bottles of wine and eight to ten bottles of liquor. The wine and liquor were valued at $100.

A 35mm camera, lens, three filters and other camera accessories plus $2 in change from a jewelry box were reported stolen Sunday by a Linden Lane resident.

The camera had been taken from under a table in the corner of a bedroom, police said. There were no signs of forced entry.

An attempted entry was reported Monday evening by a Snowden Lane resident.

The owner told police he was getting ready to go to bed when he heard glass breaking. He shouted, "Who's that?" and came down the stairs. He noticed a window in the rear door had been broken.

Police said, however, that the door had been secured by a two-bolt lock and door lock and that no entry had been gained.

ROBESON CENTER

Can It Continue? A community discussion on the future of the Paul Robeson Community Center will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church, Witherspoon and Maclean.

The Rev. Leon Gipson, pastor, has called the meeting to obtain comments from the community about whether the Center can continue to operate. Mrs. Holly Rhodes Thomas, who has resigned as director of the Center but is remaining as acting director, is expected to be present.

TWO ARE FINED

For Speeding. Elias Gibbs, 145 John Street, was fined $35, and Judith W. Stier, 71 Lovers Lane, $32, for speeding Monday in Borough traffic court.

Judge Philip Carchman also fined George L. Colnaghi, 16 Fisher Avenue, $15 for overdue inspection.

MAN HALF NAKED

Standing in Park. A 16-year-old Township high school student told police last week as she was walking through Grover Park Friday afternoon, she saw a man standing in the center of the park naked from the waist down.

TO MARKET TO MARKET, in Crosstown 62's new van service. Miss Elizabeth Hendry gets door-to-door service to Nassau Street and to Shopping Center and help with her bundles from James Gillard, the driver. The van operates on Tuesdays and Thursdays and reservations are made the day before by calling Crosstown 62 at 924-6162.

As she walked past him, he called to her. When she ignored him, she told police, he started to utter profanities. He was described as a white male, 25 to 30, 5-10 to six feet tall, with curly black hair and a moustache. He was wearing a blue and gold shirt and brown work shoes.

When the student turned around, he exposed himself. The student shouted, "Get out!" and he fled from the room. The only description police have is that of a white male, 23 to 25 years old.

WINDOW BROKEN

At Public Library. A 12-foot by 5-foot window on the north side of the Public Library was broken this week when a beer bottle was thrown against it.

Police, who received a report of the vandalism at 8:56 Monday evening, estimated the replacement cost at $500 to $700.

A Lawrence Apartment resident told Township police that the right front and left rear tires of her car had been slashed last week while it was parked in the apartment lot. The tires were valued at $50 each.

ASSESSOR TO CONFER

With Council. Revaluation will be the top item on this Thursday's agenda — when Borough Council holds an 8 p.m. agenda session in Borough Hall. Assessor Stuart Robeson will provide the data. Council is also scheduled to discuss procedures for appointing a Borough attorney to replace Gordon D. Griffin. Mr. Griffin has told Council that he would like to give up his municipal practice.

At last Thursday's work session, Council introduced several ordinances for December public hearing.

The maintenance supervisor at Princeton Day School, Edward Dobkowsky, reported last week that a windshield of an unregistered, 1964 pickup truck which was being restored had been shattered by an unknown object. Estimated damage is $200.

At the same time, Mr. Dobkowsky told police, a $52 battery was stolen from a 1974 pickup truck parked near a garage in the maintenance area.

One, for $23,500, will enable work to begin on the Borough Hall gym as a senior citizens center. The state will eventually re-imburse the Borough for the amount.

Council has decided to retain the City of East Orange, N.J., to do the computer work on traffic tickets. The cost will be 32 cents per ticket, or about $16,000 a year. The Borough has been using the Computer firm of Elizabeth, but that company raised its rate from 36 to 45 cents, or $18,000 to $31,000 a year. The two firms are the only ones authorized by the state to be vendors for the service.

MORE BOYS THAN GIRLS

On Week's Birthlist. There were 10 boys and five girls born in the week ending November 30 at Princeton Medical Center.

Sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Schmierer, 758 Lower Ferry Road, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. David Tyler, Pine Tree Apartments, L-19B, Old Bridge, both on November 25; Mr. and Mrs. John Makkay, 43 Liberty Street, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. George Sylvester, 74 Carl Sandburg Drive, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simmons, 8 South Drive, Box 370, Hightstown, all on November 26;

Also to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Young, 25 Lake Drive, Roosevelt, November 27; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sherman, 15 Tamarack Drive, Edison; Dr. and Mrs. Juan Formento, 1043 Old York Road, Hightstown; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bradley, all on November 29; and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Seidel, 23 Montgomery Avenue, Rocky Hill, November 30.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walsh, 635 Dewey Road, North Brunswick, November 25; Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Casey, 32 Fairview, Long Valley; Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Reyes, Hampton Arms, Hightstown, November 26; Mr. and Mrs. Justus DeWindt, 3 Yorkstowne Court, Princeton Junction; Mr. and Mrs. John Kissel, Princeton Arms East, Cranbury.

In other action, Council introduced an ordinance raising the liquor license fee for bars and restaurants from $1,850 to $2,000 a year — the state maximum. The fee for liquor stores, under the new ordinance, would be raised from $1,400 to $1,680.

Council passed a resolution complaining about New Jersey regulation on solid waste disposal. The rules have the effect of requiring Mercer County municipalities to use Burlington County. The Borough uses Middlesex for solid waste disposal.

The maximum age for joining Princeton's fire department will be 45, instead of 40, under a new ordinance.

FOR HORTICULTURE SCHOLARSHIP: Mrs. Clarence DiDonato presents a check for $5,000 in memory of her late husband to Charles Tichenor (center), President of the Mercer County Community College Foundation, and Anthony Zuccarello, chairman of the MCCC Board of Trustees. Story, this page.

SCHOLARSHIP ENDOWED In Memory of Clarence DiDonato. Students majoring in ornamental horticulture at Mercer County Community College will benefit from a new scholarship established in memory of the late Clarence DiDonato by his family and friends.

The scholarship will be derived from interest on a donation of $5,000 to the MCCC Foundation by Mr. DiDonato's wife, Lena, their children and friends of the family who had made contributions in his memory. He was for many years a resident of Harris Road.

According to Charles Tichenor, President of Champale, Inc., and president of the MCCC Foundation, "Mr. DiDonato was known as a man who loved people, plants and flowers -- he had a lifelong interest in horticulture. His family and friends have made it possible for the College to give a deserving student majoring in ornamental horticulture a grant to cover the cost of tuition, books and fees."

Contributing to the scholarship in addition to Mrs. DiDonato were their children, Len DiDonato, Director of the N.J. Division of Building and Construction, Rose Nini, Executive Assistant to the President at MCCC, and Bud DiDonato of the N.J. Office of Inmate Advocacy.

The scholarship will be awarded to a second year horticulture student in the spring of 1980 and thereafter.

CENTER 'UNFAIR'

Says NLRB. Princeton hospital "is now discriminating" against security guard Lawrence Milner in regard to Mr. Milner's conditions of employment, the National Labor Relations Board said last week.

The NLRB's Newark office set April 3, 1980 as the date for a hearing before the NLRB's law judge on the complaint. The Medical Center has ten days to file an answer; if it doesn't, the NLRB may find that the complaint's allegations are true.

Mr. Milner, who was a key figure in organizing security guards into a union, charged that he was suspended for three days last July, placed on probation and transferred to a less-desirable shift at a lower gallons of oil and 69.9 million kilowatt hours of electricity from July 1978 to June 1979. The actual levels of consumption were 5.3 million gallons of oil and 51.8 million kilowatt hours of electricity.

During the fuel crunch of 1973-74, the university adopted its current temperature guidelines (winter, no higher than 65 degrees in academic and administrative buildings and 68 degrees in dormitories and dwellings; summer, no lower than 78 degrees) that have been adopted for the nation by the federal government. In addition, when buildings are not in use the winter temperature is cut back to 50 degrees.

An "Energy Hotline" was established in September to encourage members of the university community to report obvious instances where energy was being wasted on campus. Among the most frequent calls have been requests for weather stripping in dormitories and reports of lights burning unnecessarily.

Long-range conservation ideas are now being solicited from students and employees through an "Energy Conservation Suggestion Contest." Prizes of $100, $75 and $50 savings bonds will be awarded quarterly for ideas judged best in terms of originality, feasibility of implementation and the amount of projected savings. The first contest runs from December 6, 1979 through March 14, 1980. "We are looking for novel approaches to conservation," Mr. McKay says. "Perhaps some way to control something automatically, or a new policy that should be implemented."

rate of pay because of union activities. The Center has since made good on wages and other benefits Mr. Milner lost because of the suspension, but, according to the complaint, has not restored Mr. Milner to his former shift, which had a higher hourly rate of pay.

NLRB investigators found that the Medical Center "did engage in and is now engaging in, unfair labor practices."

SENIOR CARE STUDIED

Helm Salary Approved. If you're over 62, it's almost a game to figure out which umbrella to choose for rain or shine.

There's the Recreation Department with Senior Citizen advisor Denise King; the Senior Resource Center under Jocelyn Helm, located at Lloyd Terrace but available to seniors throughout the community; Crosstown 62, the transportation service; the Princeton Senior Citizens Club and the two Welfare Departments.

Last week, when both municipal governing bodies agreed to pay $3,333 each in 1980 toward Mrs. Helm's salary — the Housing Authority making up whatever the balance may be — Township Committee member Kate Litvack told the Borough that the Township plans to re-study the Welfare Department, perhaps converting it to a Department of Social Services which could be The Big Umbrella for all.

Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this week that the Borough may undertake a similar study with a similar end in view. Dorothy Kruger is welfare officer for both Borough and Township, dividing her time equally between the two. There was no suggestion of a merged department.

TO CELEBRATE CUSTOMS From Around the World.

The YWCA will hold an International Celebration Sunday from 2 to 5 at the YWCA building on Paul Robeson Place. Mrs. Tehmina Alphonse and Mrs. Pam Woodward are co-chairmen.

Area families are invited to enjoy holiday traditions, songs and dances from around the world. Admission is free, but donations are welcome.

In the all-purpose room the Russian Chorus, led by Dan Skvir, will perform from 2 to 3. The Princeton Folk Dance Group will demonstrate ethnic dances from 3 to 4 and the Princeton Day School Madrigals will entertain from 4 to 5. In the Lounge, Ruth Anne Byers, YWCA Youth Program Director, will lead a guitar-accompanied sing-along of Christmas carols.

There will be a display of Ukrainian decorations and food, and Trenton branches number 11 and 19 of the Ukrainian National Women's League of America will have an exhibit.

Throughout the afternoon, informal discussions of international customs will be held at the Library. Mrs. Sue Kim and Mrs. Sung Yoo will talk about Korean traditions, while Mrs. Inge Shrinivasan will explain German Christmas customs. Also participating will be Mrs. Lucia Lung and Mrs. Ruth Sheng who will discuss the Chinese New Year. The Dutch "St. Nick" will also appear.

BAZAAR THIS WEEKEND

At Lewis Clinic. Hand-crafted Christmas gifts and holiday decorations will highlight the fourth annual Holiday Bazaar of the Lewis Clinic for Educational Therapy on Friday from 5 to 10 and Saturday from 10 to 6. The bazaar will take place at the Lewis Clinic, 621 Alexander Road.

There will be an array of baked goods, plants and handmade crafts to choose from, as well as the "Nearly New Market" and the "Semi-collectable Corner." New additions this year include the children's "Make It and Take It" area and "Le Cafe."

The Lewis Clinic for Educational Therapy provides a small, private educational environment for learning disabled children, preschool through adolescence.

CENTER TO GAIN

For Bazaar Saturday. The Senior Citizens Club will hold a Christmas Bazaar on Saturday from 10-4 at The Hook and Ladder Fire House on North Harrison Street. Proceeds will go toward refurbishing The Borough Hall Gymnasium for a permanent meeting facility.

A variety of home baked pies, bread, cake and cookies will be on sale. There will also be ceramics made by Senior Citizens, hand knit, crocheted articles and hand-sewn pieces. There will be a variety of plants and white elephant items.

Members are asked to contribute at least one article and donations from friends will be appreciated.

Lawrenceville Resident Invents Game of 'Nuke,' Offering Participants Satire on Nuclear Power

If you're sitting around with idle hands, caught between receiving your PhD and entering law school, what are you going to do with your time?

Invent a game, of course.

Andrea Asaro, who found herself with a new doctorate in political philosophy from Princeton and an invitation to enter University of Pennsylvania law school, invented "NUKE."

"It's a satire on nuclear power. In case this strikes you as an odd subject for fun and games, or perhaps something too esoteric for anybody but the family nuclear physicist, just think of Monopoly. NUKE is a direct, linear descendant thereof.

For All Ages. "Kids love it!" exclaims Ms. Asaro, the first-year law student. A woman of explosive nuclear energy herself, she found it as exciting to invent NUKE as the kids -- or adults -- do to play it.

Object of the game is to build a nuclear power plant. You must obtain one each of five permits and one billion dollars to win. If you go bankrupt, you must drop out of the game. As many as four can play. The game, unlike perpetual Monopoly, lasts about half an hour. It has swings and balances, as various players cope with the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.

Start at your corner of the board. Throw the die, and you're off.

Suppose you land on "EPA waives air-quality permit" or "Anti-nuke demonstration in New Hampshire." Tough. You lose one permit. You're trying to get those five: from EPA, state PUC, NRC, local planning board, state DEP. If you get a Federal pre-emption permit, it's like a wild card, good for any state or local permit.

Optimal Deals. You keep your permits close to your chest, concealed from your three opponents. If you draw "Private Transaction Option," you can work out a deal with another player. Maybe that player has a permit you need, but is short of cash, which you have a lot of. And so on.

"It gives you a chance to exercise some skill and discretion," Ms. Asaro explains. "It's not merely a game of chance.

"But toward the end, you get very, very cautious. Why make a trade, for example, because one more permit may be all your opponent needs to win."

Based on Fact. All the "stops" on the board are actual nuclear energy events, points out David Morell, Ms. Asaro's partner and advisor.

"Major earthquake fault discovered after site approval" is one. "Large oil refinery in California violates EPA regulations," is another.

The utility companies in the game are fictitious (and in actual fact, utilities as regulated monopolies don't compete with each other). The game's bank is called the "Brice-Henderson Insurance Pool," a teasing reference to the real-life Price-Anderson Act that sets a limit on utility liability in case of accident.

David Morell chuckles. He likes to tell about the time he was on a panel, and unthinkingly referred to his game's "Brice-Henderson" instead of the real "Price-Anderson."

"My son was in the audience—he was the only one who caught it!"

Glossary Furnished. "It's a spoof, a satire," Mr. Morell continues. "Remember when a physicist said nuclear specialists were the 'high priests of nuclear technology?' Well, this is a spoof of that attitude.

"A glossary comes with the game. You look up some mysterious acronym like CWIP—and find that all it means is "Construction Work in Progress!" An industry that wants exclusivity, veils its language. Our idea is to demystify."

Asaro and Morell are cheerful opponents of nuclear energy.

"People are shocked sometimes, that we've made a game of something so serious," Ms. Asaro has found, "but if you can't develop a level of humor, you just can't cope with it all! You must maintain some sense of humor, some ability to laugh at yourself."

"A movement with continuity," Mr. Morell observes, "mustn't take itself so seriously, even though life and death are involved."

is not so simple as you may think. Asaro and Morell, with assorted children as testing agents, worked over NUKE for some time.

"You need," Ms. Asaro explains intently, "the right mix, so the game doesn't go too fast, or too slow."

They began on NUKE in May. Sketched out the board's cooling towers with the rim of a dinner plate.

They sent it, cold, to Milton Bradley and Parker Brothers, the two giant game companies. Each returned it, unopened. They sent it to Selchow-Righter, producers of "Scrabble," who returned it as "inappropriate" for their company.

Where to Buy. So they went into business themselves. The Print Shop in Trenton printed the first edition of 1,000. They're marketing it themselves, also. You can buy it by sending $8.95, plus 45 cents New Jersey sales tax, to "NUKE," 813 Lawrence Road, Lawrenceville, New Jersey, 08648.

It may also be purchased for $8.95 at the Whole Earth Center, 360 Nassau, and Titles Unlimited in the Princeton Shopping Center or Montgomery Center, or for $10 from the Princeton University Store.

David Morell is on the Princeton University faculty as research political scientist at Princeton's Center for Energy and Environmental Studies. When he isn't playing NUKE.

WHERE DO YOU GO?

If You Need Help? Princeton residents with problems often don't know which agency to call on, and many times the agency they do turn to, sends them somewhere else.

This problem, and related ones, will be discussed this Thursday by Princeton's social service agencies and churches, at a session sponsored by Borough and Township Welfare Departments and the Princeton chapter of the Red Cross.

The meeting, to be held at 10 in the Red Cross Headquarters, Harrison Street, will focus on specific areas where agencies can help -- food, clothing, shelter, financial assistance and general guidelines for assistance.

"We hope to open the lines of communication so that we can all be better informed," said Dorothy J. Kruger, Princeton's director of welfare.

"Our referral network should be as accurate as possible," said Ann Honore, Red Cross director. "It's time we updated our list of who are resource people are and what they can provide."

GRANT AWARDED

To Historical Society. The Historical Society has been awarded a $3,894 Federal grant from the Institute of Museum Services.

Famed Catalpa Tree at Vandeventer and Park, Over 200 Years Old, Demolished by Moving Van

IN FULL BLOOM: Years and years and years ago, Princeton Borough's best-known tree (in deference to Mercer Oak in the Township) looked like this on a summer day.

The ancient and venerable catalpa tree that stood at the corner of Vandeventer Avenue and Park Place for over two centuries stands no more.

A mortal blow from a Bohren's moving van attempting to back in to Park Place from Vandeventer last Wednesday proved to be more than the old tree could withstand. Tree surgeons summoned to the scene decided that, like Humpty Dumpty, it could not be put back up again. The tree was known as the Beatty Catalpa, from the historic mansion in front of which it stood.

The old tree had been in declining health for some time. Its huge gnarled trunk had a cavity big enough for a boy to crawl in. Its long horizontal limbs were propped up by iron posts, giving it the appearance of an old man with many canes. Daylight was visible through numerous holes in its branches.

Legend has it that the tree was a leftover from a row of 13 catalpa trees planted around 1767 by Richard Stockton, Signer of the Declaration of Independence, in front of his home at Morven. The trees may have been given to the Stocktons by George Washington, and they were supposed to stand for the 13 colonies.

Legend also has it that they first bloomed on July 4, 1776, and were thus called Independence Day Trees. They stood mainly in the open, with little to protect them, and succumbed finally to an ice storm. The D.A.R. has preserved one of the largest of the stumps, marking it with a plaque describing its history.

The Beatty Catalpa was thought to have been a contemporary of those trees. If so, it was about 212 years old. It was planted by a stream that ran where Park Place is now.

Still another legend says that George Washington stopped there to water his horse and stuck his riding crop into the ground. The tree was supposed to have sprung from the riding crop, but hardwood trees don't take root that way, says William Flemer III of Flemer Nurseries.

The Beatty House, home of Colonel Erskines Beatty, an aide to Lafayette in the Revolution, was not there at the time. The house originally stood across Nassau Street from Bainbridge House. It was moved in 1877 to its present location, then on the banks of a skating pond fed by the stream and springs that give Spring Street its name.

An Imaginary Boat. At its prime, the Beatty Catalpa measured 11 feet four inches in circumference at breast height, according to a 1950's or early 60's article in American Forest Magazine. Its magnificent branches spread over 75 feet. The article goes on to describe a time when hazing was a custom at the University and the great branches held rows of Princeton freshmen solemnly pretending they were rowing a boat, using toothpicks for oars, while their sophomore tormentors stood by cheering and jeering.

For more than two centuries the grand old tree withstood ice storms and hurricanes and even fires. Mrs. John M. Larson of 10 Madison Street remembers a time when a "considerable blaze" was set at the base of the tree, and she sent her daughter up the street to prepare Mrs. Oliver Houghton Hubbard, owner of Beatty House at the time, for the awful sight. It was Mrs. Hubbard who nominated the Beatty Catalpa for the Hall of Fame of Trees.

John Hammer of Library Place says that his children used to call the catalpa "The Worry Tree," because it looked so distressed and dismal in winter. However, each spring the old tree would leaf out, put forth its huge white blossoms and flourish once more.

There is one survivor. After the tree surgeons had sawed up the trunk and limbs in great hunks and laid them out on the lawn, a relatively young sapling, about 12 feet tall, became apparent, springing from the contorted base of its parent. An earlier off-shoot, planted by Mrs. Larson in her own garden and nurtured as a prospective gift to the Historical Society, was felled by an over-zealous gardener, and only a stump remains.

TOWNSHIP BUYS LAND

For Park. About eight and one-half acres of land on Snowden Lane belonging to Mrs. Van Dyke Wight will be purchased by the Township to complete a Van Dyke Wight Park. The municipality had previously bought 22 adjoining acres belonging to the Van Dyke Wight family.

The price is $92,000. No Green Acres money is involved, and the entire sum will be paid by the Township. The enabling ordinance will be introduced this Wednesday.

Mrs. Wight, who now lives in Switzerland, formerly lived in the house at 523 Snowden Lane. Negotiations for purchase of this second section of her property began several years ago; however, it was not possible to reach an agreement before now on a price.

In other business this Wednesday, Committee will receive the resignations of Dean Chace from the Joint Recreation Board and William O'Shaughnessy from the Zoning Board. It is the second Zoning Board resignation in recent weeks.

Committee will also introduce an ordinance allowing residential building in the Office-Research zone. The request is from the Planning Board, now hearing the application of W. Bryce Thompson IV to subdivide land in the OR zone for sale to buyers who would build office buildings. Several Planning Board members have suggested that Mr. Thompson offer the land for housing, but he has pointed to the zoning ordinance, which prohibits residences in that zone.

HIGHLIGHTS

NEW TEACHERS AND STAFF: AN INTRODUCTION AND A WELCOME

This has been a year of change in the Princeton schools, beginning with the principals, but also in the classrooms. Over the next few weeks the Highlights reporters will introduce some of the new faces at their schools. We're delighted to have so many able and interesting people joining the school system, and we welcome them to Princeton.

Ron Steward is the new music teacher at COMMUNITY PARK. His background includes Howard University, thirteen years teaching in the New York City public schools and, immediately prior to his arrival in Princeton, a year working with the Royal Theatre in Sweden. Teaching at the elementary level is proving to be a new and delightful experience, giving him the opportunity, for the first time, to teach music basics. He finds too that a discovery process rather than a more formal presentation is ideal for children of this age. Mr. Steward sums up the atmosphere in his music classes saying "It's relaxed and fun making music together. I love it and they do too." His enthusiasm is infectious; music at CP shows signs of being a very special "Special."

Eileen Lawrence, the new K teacher at LITTLEBROOK has been involved in kindergarten work since she was a graduate student in education at Antioch-Putney in Vermont. There, she established her own degree criteria -- to start her own kindergarten. As state law in nearby New Hampshire did not yet mandate kindergarten, Ms. Lawrence began one in the town of Orford, in a church basement, on a shoestring budget, building community interest herself. Her class soon became a demonstration kindergarten, regularly staffed with teachers in training from the Dartmouth School of Education as well as her own Antioch-Putney. A training film made of the enterprise was used in college classrooms.

Returning to New Jersey, her native state, Ms. Lawrence slowed down her teaching activity while raising her son, but kept busy with teacher workshops and consulting. Now back in the classroom, her first topic of the year was seeds, how many things we eat are seeds and how they grow. Her experience running a self-sufficient farm in Vermont provides invaluable background for this study. As the K classroom centers more on activities than on workbooks, Ms. Lawrence encourages the children to express themselves in a variety of media. Her dulcimer and banjo, a cross between a ukelele and a banjo, are on hand to enliven the day. Welcome back, Ms. Lawrence.

Judith McCartin at JOHNSON PARK did not begin her career with an interest in K-1 teaching. A native of St. Paul, Minn., she received a master's degree in English Literature from the University of Minnesota and taught high school English in Minneapolis for one year. That experience called her attention to reading problems which she felt might have been corrected if they had been perceived earlier. The birth and growth of her daughter, now a high school senior, increased her interest in the beginnings of learning. By the time she had moved to Delaware that interest had led her into the field of Early Childhood Education. Courses at Fairleigh Dickinson University and an internship in Delaware were followed by eight years teaching a pre-K-K in Wilmington, where she also piloted a K-2 program.

Two years ago when her husband was transferred by Dupont to Parlin, N.J., Mrs. McCartin began attending Rider College full-time, taking a variety of graduate and under-graduate courses in the Elementary education curriculum. She emerged with full N.J. certification for grades K-12. In these few years in N.J., Mrs. McCartin has taught at several age levels. She was a supplementary reading teacher at West Windsor High School, had a 3-4 class at CP last year, and now is back close to the beginning of the learning process, K-1 at JP.

At JOHN WITHERSPOON MIDDLE SCHOOL, J. Alfred Seitz is a new face this year, although he served in the same capacity, assistant principal, across the street at PHS for 15 years. He expresses pleasure with his new post, and finds working with pre- and early-adolescent students challenging and satisfying.

Mr. Seitz, who has completed the coursework toward his Doctorate in School Administration, lives in Princeton in a home he designed and built. The father of three grown children, his hobbies include cooking, golf and skiing. The new Assistant Principal is proud to be part of what he believes to be a really exceptional school, and is equally enthusiastic about the staff, students and parents.

NEW JERSEY SYMPHONY CONCERT ON DECEMBER 12

The Princeton Chapter of Friends of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra is presenting a seasonal concert on December 12 at 8:15 P.M. in the PHS auditorium. The concert is planned primarily for middle school and high school students, but is open to all the community. It will be given by the Sinfonetta, a thirty-five member section of the orchestra, and will be conducted by George Maull. Student tickets are $1 if purchased at JWS or PHS during lunch-time on December 5 or all day on December 10. Tickets may also be purchased at the door at a price of $2 for students or senior citizens and $4 for adults. For tickets or information call 921-8139.

PRINCETON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Joanna Froehlich, a senior at PHS, has been awarded a 1979 Achievement Award in Writing by the National Council of Teachers of English. The approximately 850 finalists selected each year represent high schools in all 50 states, Washington D.C. and American schools abroad.

School attendance on report cards was omitted inadvertently. A copy of the grade report with attendance is available in the PHS main office.

Scores on the California Achievement Tests administered last spring are now available in the guidance offices. COLLEGE UNDER $3000?

Guide Tells of 400. For those who are tired of headlines about how much a college education costs today, the news from the Princeton-based publishers of Peterson's Annual Guide to Undergraduate Study is cheering. The 1980 edition reveals that over 400 colleges still cost under $3000 - 98 of them less than $2000.

With more than 91 percent of the country's 2800 accredited institutions submitting data for the Guide, only 36 schools listed comprehensive fees — which include tuition, room and board — of over $7000, and only 125 schools, or less than 5 percent of the total group, listed comprehensive fees of over $6000. "Although schools like Bennington, Williams, Princeton, and Yale are hovering around the $8000 figure," states Peter W. Hegener, President and Publisher of Peterson's, "there are still hundreds of much less expensive colleges that are excellent in every way."

Mr. Hegener suggests that students and families who are concerned equally about high quality and low cost correlate the standardized test tables and the tuition figures in the 1980 Guide. "You'll find," he says, "that Deep Springs College in California and Webb Institute of Naval Architecture in New York are among the most demanding colleges in the country and both are virtually tuition-free." Similarly, Cook College of Rutgers University and the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill are two highly regarded institutions that cost under $4000 for out-of-state residents, less than $3000 for their own state residents.

Even at the most expensive colleges the financial picture has an optimistic angle in that the new Guide reveals that high percentages of students are receiving some kind of financial aid. At Princeton, for example, the figure is 45 percent of the undergraduates, at the University of Pennsylvania it is 55 percent, and at Harvard it climbs to 67 percent.

Peterson's new data also contain reassuring news for students concerned about their admission chances. When asked to place themselves in one of five entrance difficulty categories — based on specific standardized test score criteria and on the application - acceptance ratio — only 22 schools, or less than 1 percent of the entire group, placed themselves in the "Most Difficult to Enter" category, and 151 considered themselves "Very Difficult to Enter." At the same time a whopping 41.2 percent of the respondents — 992 schools — said that they were "Non-competitive" — that is, that virtually all students are accepted regardless of test scores or high school rank.

The 1984-page guide has profiles of 2500 colleges augmented by detailed two-page descriptions of more than 530 colleges written for the guide by faculty members and administrators. Fully explained are academic programs, campus facilities, student life, costs, financial aid and work programs, local recreation and entertainment possibilities, and the nature of the college community.

The 1980 edition is available in bookstores or may be ordered from Peterson's Guides Book Order Department, Box 978, Edison, N.J. 08817, for $12 plus applicable state taxes and $1.25 postage and handling.

FOLK SINGERS DUE
At Elementary Schools,
Folksingers Sandy and Caroline Paton are returning to Princeton to spend all day on this Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Community

Park, Riverside and Johnson

Park schools, respectively, giving performance and workshops for the students.
The Paton's repertoire is derived from the traditional music of the entire English-speaking world. There are songs of our history—the early settlers, the later immigrants,

songs of sailors, loggers, miners, cowboys and migrant farm workers. Their music is gentle, their style informal, but their scholarship is precise.

FACILITIES EXPANDED
At Charley's Brother Restaurant. Charley's Brother, the restaurant on Route 518 Spur in Hopewell, has redecorated its downstairs lounge and converted it into banquet and party facilities that will accommodate up to 175.

Owner Merrill Zinder of the Goodtime Charley chain says that new carpeting and new chairs and tables have been installed. The downstairs has also been repainted and a new, banquet-size bar added.

Charley's Brother has recently added an attractive Garden Room upstairs and has received many requests, Mr. Zinder said, for banquets, which prompted the decision to convert the downstairs lounge. The three existing dining rooms and the new Garden Cocktail Lounge are open five days for lunch and seven nights each week for dinner.

Multi-State Program, Series 4, New Jersey Trust 1 (A Unit Investment Trust)

Many Municipal Bond Trusts offer federally tax-exempt interest income. But few offer interest income exempt from local taxes as well.

That means The Multi-State Program, Series 4, New Jersey Trust 1, can offer you higher after-tax income than most municipal bond trusts offering similar returns. The trust is a diversified portfolio of municipal bonds, all of which have been rated "A" or better by either Moody's or Standard & Poor's. There are a variety of other advantages for buying it too.

- You get a known, double tax-exempt current return.
- Choice of semiannual, quarterly, or monthly interest payments.
- You can sell at any time without sales charges at the current market value.
- Diversified holdings, professionally selected.
- There is no management fee.
- No coupons to clip; no safekeeping problems.

This represents the net annual interest income, payable semiannually after annual expenses, divided by the public offering price on November 29, 1979. The annual return on November 29, 1979 payable quarterly was 7.90% and payable monthly was 7.87%. Annual return varies with changes in either net interest income or the public offering price. Public Offering Price Per Unit at November 29, 1979 was $980.78 plus accrued interest of $20.41 or a total of $1,001.19.

Under existing law, interest is exempt from federal income tax and New Jersey income tax for New Jersey residents.

CONCERN EXPRESSED For Hostages. The executive committee of the Princeton Clergy Association - Blau Aldridge, president; Edward Frost, vice-president; Richard Bower, secretary; and Melvin J. Glatt, past president - issued a statement this week expressing concern for the American hostages held in Iran.

The text: "We express our sense of outrage at the Government of Iran's flagrant denial of the processes of International Law by holding Americans as hostages in our nation's Teheran Embassy.

"We fully endorse and support all the peaceful means which President Carter has thus far undertaken to arouse the conscience of the world regarding this terrible injustice and to secure the release of those being held captive against their wills.

"On behalf of our clergy colleagues and in the name of our respective religious faiths we pray with full hearts that the Americans now incarcerated will soon be home with their families and dear ones, and above all, that a feeling for International Law and responsibility will again be restored to the world over."

FOR A CHRISTMAS FAIR: Mrs. William Tukey displays some of the items that will be offered in the Silent Auction at the Trinity Church Christmas Fair this Sunday and the following two Sundays, from 10 to 2.

TRINITY PLANS FAIR On Three Sundays. The annual Trinity Christmas Fair will be held this year over three Sundays, December 9, 16, and 23 from 10 till 2. The Silent Auction will be an outstanding attraction with many items including a large silver serving spoon, sterling cordials, an antique silver card tray, Minton china, dessert plates and more. The bidding will close on December 23 at 1.

There will be a bountiful bakery, especially this Sunday, featuring many breads and goodies for holiday meals. The Trinity Choir will be selling calendars, mugs, and straw wreaths to finance their Cathedrals '80 tour of England. They will also have copies of their new album for sale.

The White Elephant booths will have a large selection of things to buy from the useful to the unusual, and there will be booths with hand-crafted ornaments, decorations, wreaths and greens. Refreshments will be available. The Christmas Fair will be held in the Parish House, 33 Mercer Street, and everyone is welcome.

FUND ESTABLISHED For Vietnamese Refugees. The board of directors of The Jewish Center has voted unanimously to establish a "Vietnamese Boat Families" Fund to help support two Vietnamese families relocating in this area.

The establishment of this Fund is part of a revitalized Social Concerns program of The Jewish Center. For the first time The Center endorsed and participated in the Princeton CROP Walk against World Hunger held in October. The Center also co-sponsored with The Princeton area League of Women Voters the Candidate's Night held at The Center prior to the recent election.

The Center's Drop-In Center - to which all members of the greater Princeton community are invited for its monthly programs held usually on the first Monday of each month - plans to hold a special Friday evening Service in the spring. All members of the community -- Jewish and non-Jewish--will be welcome as the Center's way of reaching out to its neighbors and informing them about the nature of the basic beliefs and observances of Judaism.

Both The Center's rabbi, Dr. Melvin J. Glatt and the Center's leadership as represented by the new Social Concerns Committee Chairman, Dr. Joel J. Kassiola, are dedicated to having the energies and resources of The Jewish Center devoted increasingly to activities reflecting the wide public interests of its members. The decision to support the Vietnamese boat families and the other socially relevant projects, they hope, will contribute to a much greater involvement on the part of The

EVENSONG SUNDAY

At Trinity Church. Choral evensong for the Advent season will be sung by the clergy and choir of men, boys, and girls of Trinity Church on the second Sunday of Advent at 4:30.

This traditional Anglican service, based on the daily evensongs sung in English cathedrals and collegiate chapels, will include medieval liturgical music for choir and congregation, Psalm 115 sung by the choir to Anglican chant, the evening canticles, Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, for solo treble (soprano) baritone and choir in G major by Charles Stanford. Other music in the service will include verse anthems for choir, soloists and strings by Orlando Gibbons and Henry Purcell. The service will close with the singing of Advent hymns by congregation and choir.

Music for strings and organ will be played as a prelude before the service at 4:10. A string quartet made up of Princeton University students, Cheryl Van Buren, violin; Jonathan Rogawski, violin; Kevin Shopland, viola and Dan Goodman, cello, will join James Litton, organist, in music by Mozart and Corelli. Irene Willis, Trinity assistant organist, will accompany the choir during the service on the four manual casavant tracker organ.

The Rev. Daphne Hawkes will be the cantor for the service.

TO SING TWO WORKS

At Nassau Church. The regular 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Nassau Presbyterian Church, will consist of a presentation by the 50-member choir of two major works. Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols," with harp accompaniment; and Daniel Pinkham's "Christmas Cantata," accompanied by organ and brass quartet will be performed.

BULLETIN NOTES

The Rev. Dr. James E. Loder has announced "Transformation and Christian Education" as the topic of his inaugural address Wednesday, December 12, at 1:20 in Princeton Seminary's Miller Chapel. The event is open to the public.

Dr. Loder was installed as Professor of Christian Education at the Seminary at a service marking the opening of the 1979-80 academic year. A graduate of Carleton College, Princeton Seminary and the Harvard University Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, he has held a research fellowship at the Menninger Foundation and has studied at the Institut Jean J. Rousseau. He joined the Princeton Seminary faculty after serving pastorates in Lakewood and in Fall River, Mass.

The Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill and State Roads, will hold its annual Family Christmas Workshop this Sunday from 3 to 5. Church members will make paper chains, foil ornaments, angels, magi, stars, birds, snowflakes and all kinds of decorations to place on the Christmas tree at the church. After the holiday, ornaments will be returned to the participants.

There will be carol singing at 5, followed by a supper of hoagies purchased from the youth group or sandwiches brought from home. Coffee, tea and punch will be available, and each family is to bring cookies to share.

The Nassau Christian Center, Nassau and Chambers Streets, will present Paul Costa Sunday morning at 10:30 when he will speak on his new commitment to life, which began, he says, in Birmingham, Ala., where "I found Jesus Christ as my personal saviour." Mr. Costa was there in the early '70s playing professional football for the team in that city which was a member of the now-defunct World Football League.

A graduate of Notre Dame, where he played 10 different positions during his four-year career, he saw action with the Kansas City Chiefs and the Buffalo Bills as a tight end and then as an offensive tackle, making the All-Pro team in 1971 in the latter capacity before joining the WFL in 1972.

The Rev. James F. Reece, Program Coordinator for the Vocation Agency of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., will conduct a worship service Thursday at 8 in Princeton Seminary's Miller Chapel. Music for the service will be provided by the 50-voice Princeton University Gospel Choir. The event, which is open to the public, is sponsored by the Princeton Seminary chapter of the Association of Black Seminarians.

OBITUARIES

It. Jack Volz, a member of Princeton University's athletic coaching staff for 29 years until his retirement in 1975, died on December 1 at his home at 214 Moore Street after a long illness. A 1936 graduate of Trenton State College, he was 65 years old.

Mr. Volz, a naval veteran of World War II who completed his tour of duty with Princeton's wartime naval units, joined the staff in 1946 as an instructor in physical education, assistant coach of baseball, and coach of both freshman soccer and freshman wrestling. He had previous coaching experience at Pemberton and Hamilton High Schools.

In 1965, he became director of the University's extensive program in intramural athletics and two years later was named head coach of soccer, a post he relinquished in 1972 to become operational manager of Dillon Gymnasium. Mr. Volz also served as a scholastic official in both soccer and basketball.

He is survived by his wife, Ethelyn C. Volz, and three sons: Richard, a painter with the University; Thomas and Roger.

A memorial service will be held in the Princeton University Chapel on Sunday at 2:30. Arrangements are under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Mrs. Charlotte Morria Perot, 84, formerly of Glencairn on the Lawrenceville Road died December 2 in the Merwick Unit of Princeton Medical Center after a lengthy illness.

Born in Philadelphia, Mrs. Perot lived in Princeton for more than 30 years. She was the wife of the late Thomas L. Perot.

Surviving are a daughter, Nancy Mirkil Gardner of Simsbury, Conn.; a sister, Mrs. H. Hamilton Warner of Chestnut Hill, Pa.; and three grandchildren.

A private service and burial were held under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Miss Martha E. Zinsman, 72, of New York City, formerly of Princeton, died December 3 in Florence Nightingale Nursing Home, New York City.

Miss Zinsman was born in Princeton and attended Princeton Public Schools. She was the daughter of the late J. George and Elizabeth Willis Zinsman.

Surviving are a sister and several cousins, nieces and nephews.

A graveside service will be held Friday at 11 in Princeton Cemetery, the Rev. Dr. William L. Tucker, pastor emeritus at the Nassau Presbyterian Church, officiating. Arrangements are under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

William B. Foulk, 86, died November 30 in Pine Run Community Infirmary, Doylestown, Pa.

Mr. Foulk was employed by Princeton University for 35 years as Curator of the Frick Chemical Laboratory and later as Director of Purchasing. He came to Princeton in 1921 from Wilmington, Del., where he had been manager of chemical stores in the duPont Experimental Station. Educated in Delaware public schools, he combined his high school studies with management of a drugstore in his native Milford, Del.

His job at Princeton, then in the throes of planning the Frick Chemical Lab, was to develop a system of supply and to arrange the service facilities. The "Foulk System" of supply from centrally located storerooms was adopted by colleges all over this country and at Manchester and Cambridge Universities in England.

Mr. Foulk assisted in establishing the then relatively young Department of Chemical Engineering as a strong department and played a leading role in setting up the Textile Research Institute in its new headquarters in a former mansion off Nassau Street. In 1945 he reluctantly resigned from Curatorship of Frick and assumed direction of the University Purchasing office.

He was named TOWN TOPICS Man of the Week in September, 1956, when he relinquished his duties as director for reasons of health but was named adviser to the Purchasing Department. He was a loyal fan of Princeton basketball.

Mr. Foulk is survived by his wife, Houston Scott Foulk.

A graveside service was held in odd Fellows Cemetery in Milford, Del.

Donald E. Weston Sr., 71, of Route 518, Hopewell, died December 1 at Princeton medical Center.

Born in Scranton, Pa., Mr. Weston lived in Hopewell for 24 years and was formerly a painter at Princeton University.

He is survived by his wife, Helen Zgola Weston; three sons, the Rev. John of Matoaka, Minn., Donald Jr. of Hopewell and Robert A. of New Egypt; his mother, Mrs. Anne Nicholas Weston of Scranton, Pa.; a brother, Thomas of Bethlehem, Pa., and eight grandchildren.

The service was held at a Hopewell memorial home, the Rev. Robert Beringer of the First Presbyterian Church of Hopewell officiating with the Rev. John Weston of the First Christian Church of Matoaka, Minn. Burial was in Highland Cemetery.

Dr. Robert B. Nystrom, 48, of Coral Gables, formerly of Skillman, died November 26 in Coral Gables.

Born in Norwalk, Conn., Dr. Nystrom had also lived in Montevideo, Uruguay, and Miami, Fla. He was a 1949 graduate of Ward College, Buenos Aires, Argentina, and graduated in 1954 from Iowa State University. He received his medical degree in 1957 from Northwestern University.

He was a diplomate of the American College of Orthopedic Surgeons and practiced orthopedic surgery in Miami for the past 20 years.

Surviving are two daughters, Marie Nystrom and Mrs. Karen Stan, both of Miami; his parents, Joel and Doris Nystrom, and a sister, Mrs. Christine Abrahams, all of Skillman; three brothers, J. Eric of Key West, Fla., Bruce of Richmond, Va., and Edward C. of Rocky Hill.

A graveside service was held in Blawenburg Cemetery, the Rev. Galen Goodwin, pastor of Montgomery United Methodist Church, officiating. Arrangements were under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Dollar Crunch Being Felt by Agencies in Fields of Planning, Health, Aging, Civil Rights as Budgets for 1980 Are Formed

(This is the third in a series on the 1980 budget requests of joint Borough-Township agencies. This week's article considers budgets of the Board of Health, Planning Board, Joint Civil Rights commission and Joint Commission on Aging.)

Bride-and groom-to-be, glowing like the diamond on her finger; the kid in worn-thin jeans getting a free dental check-up; the diner who noticed cockroaches in a restaurant -- the daily report of Princeton's joint Borough-Township Board of Health logs in rich and poor, young and old, everybody in between.

The requested 1980 budget of $26,530 (not including salaries) shows some cut-backs from 1979 but is still $1,200 above the current $25,330 figure. The Township provides two-thirds of the joint health budget, the Borough one-third.

Cut-backs are in the contribution to two mental health agencies: Community Guidance, reduced from $4,000 to $3,300, and Trinity Counseling, from $2,000 to $1,300. Dental care for the indigent is also less: $3,400 instead of $4,000.

Like so many agencies, boards of health have mandates from the state -- programs they are required to run, money or no.

Princeton's new monthly Child Health Conference, started this October, is one of these. It's blocked in for $2,200, to pay doctor and nurse. Another required program sets up screening for diabetes, cancer and hypertension, and Princeton's budget shows $700 for this service. The state-required venereal disease counselling service is down for $1,350 -- in contrast to the 1979 figure of $1,150. This is a Thursday evening clinic at the Medical Center, and the money pays for Borough and Township residents who attend.

The state does not require the expenditure of any particular dollar amount for these services, by the way.

The biggest item in the Board of Health budget is the $6,500 allocated to nursing services. The program is operated through the Medical Center's Department of Community Health and the budget reflects an increase from $14 to $18 an hour for nursing care.

Nurses in this program make home calls on elderly shut-ins afflicted with cardiovascular disease, cancer, the problems of diabetes. They also help expectant mothers and, later, the mother with her new baby.

Contractual services like these account for $18,750 in the requested budget -- an increase of only $100.

Patrick Hanson, Princeton's new health officer, who took on his new duties last spring, says the state wants towns to have a "health educator," although so far, it is not requiring one.

"We haven't asked for one in the budget," Mr. Hanson says. "We couldn't justify one, full-time, in such a small community. But we're hoping we might work with Princeton University or the public schools. And of course, we do provide some health education: for food handlers, or landlords when we make inspections, and for parents who bring their kids to our Child Health Conference."

Those child health sessions are held at 2 p.m. in Borough Hall the third Thursday in the month. Inquiries may be made by calling 924-3407.

Sanitarians at Work. The board of health itself, through its own staff, makes sure the infrastructure of the community is in sound health. The three sanitarians -- all are men, at this time -- spot check restaurants and food stores, inspect rented houses or apartments whenever a new tenant moves in to make sure water runs hot and cold, furnaces and light fixtures work, stair railings are secure, roaches and rodents absent in force.

And they act on complaints, too, from that diner who found a roach or an unhappy tenant shivering in the cold.

"We could use another inspector," Mr. Hanson says, without much hope.

The board is asking for six percent salary increases, plus two percent for one of the sanitarians as a merit increase.

Sanitarians must have a B.A. degree and state certification. One of the three earns $11,600. The other two -- one of whom has been with Princeton's health department for 15 years -- make $14,900. Mr. Hanson's salary is $25,000.

Usually a gentle, soft-speaking man, Mr. Hanson says with considerable firmness, "I wish the state had that five percent cap! They have nine or ten percent, for state agencies. The five percent is starting to be a real handicap -- you can only cut so much!"

There is money for the dye used in tracing septic systems; for "flushing agents" used to entice roaches from their nests; lab fees to the state for the analysis of food or water; $1,375 in travel providing 17 cents a mile for sanitarians -- who drive their own Volkswagens, incidentally.

The bride and groom eager for the marriage license, the undertaker who needs a burial permit or duplicate death certificates -- plus a thousand other paper-work duties, are handled by the full-time registrar and secretary. There is a deputy registrar who is also part-time secretary, and Mr. Hanson wishes there were enough money to make that job full-time.

Princeton receives no state health aid because the two combined communities are not big enough, Mr. Hanson says.

PLANNING BOARD

Needs a Full-Time Planner. Until a road goes where you don't want it or a parking garage is approved or rejected, the Planning Board doesn't intrude on the daily lives of Princeton residents.

But it's the body charged by state law with planning the future growth of the community and in 1980, what the Planning Board wants almost more than anything else is a full-time, live-in professional planner.

Full of hope that Borough and Township governments will agree, the board is asking $25,500 to $28,000 for his or her salary. Since board members won't even begin to interview for the job until the new Master Plan has been completed -- mid-1980, says vice-chairman Hans K. Sander -- only part of that salary would be needed next year.

The last planner, who was making about $21,000, left early this year. The board hired a trio of consultants for $17,500 to complete the Master Plan and tie it all up, but Mr. Sander says bringing in consultants isn't a full-time answer to a regular planner; in fact, he refers to the concept of consultants as "a very poor second choice" to a full-time planner.

What the board wants is somebody to analyze applications from developers, maintain communications with surrounding towns, the state and the county, give professional advice at board meetings, co-ordinate everything submitted to the board.

Current McCarter Play, Stoppard's 'Jumpers,' Assures Audience Highly Entertaining Evening

If the McCarter Theatre Company's new artistic director, Nagle Jackson, keeps on giving us productions like the current "Jumpers" by Tom Stoppard, and its predecessor "All the Way Home," reviewers will be scrambling for new ways to say "brilliant."

Meanwhile, that's the word for "Jumpers," as directed by Mr. Jackson himself. Of Mr. Stoppard's intellectually intimidating 1972 English farce, opinions will vary. Some may be put off by the amount of hard listening it seems to demand. But for the way it is cast, directed, performed, set, costumed, and lighted — nothing but cheers.

News Of The THEATRES

Perhaps most of all, for those who look to the McCarter Company for their theatre fare year in and year out, the production is enormously reassuring as to Mr. Jackson's taste. "Jumpers" is a playscript booby trapped with opportunities for a director to reveal a weakness for the cheap laugh, the small touch that seems so funny in rehearsal and screams "too much!" in performance. While joyfully exploiting the play's broad, sexy, horse-playful elements, Mr. Jackson shows a nice and welcome restraint.

Mr. Stoppard's madly

Katherine McGrath
Funny, Eye-Filling, Brassily Innocent

improvisational play is hard to describe. On the surface it seems to be nothing but terribly funny. But can so erudite and clever an author be up to nothing but entertaining us? Are we missing something?

Fast-Paced Opening. "Jumpers" opens with a party celebrating an election victory. Five gymnasts, or "jumpers," in warm-up suits perform with much vigor and many a terminal "HA!" An undulant, baby-voiced blonde in glittering low-cut, high-slit evening gown tries to belt out moonsongs whose lyrics keep escaping her, despite prompting from an elderly waiter who accompanies her — or would, if she could only accompany him — on the piano.

Overhead, meanwhile, a pretty girl swings wildly back and forth wearing very little except the chandelier. A shot rings out, a jumper falls, all exit running, leaving the blonde to dispose of the corpse.

Next scene: In his apartment study, George, a professor of moral philosophy in a British university, is dictating a lecture to his silent and demure secretary — who turns out to be the girl on the chandelier: an incredibly convoluted, brilliantly boring lecture which asks the sermonic question, "Is God?"

Borne along on the flood of language are some funny one-liners such as the title of a new hook on religion: "You Better Believe It!" The lecture — much interrupted — brings down the Act I curtain thousands of words later with another sermonic question, "What's so good about 'good'?"

An Amusing Set. While George dictates, his wife Dorothy — in the bedroom of John Jensen's practical and amusing multi-room setting — still scantily clad, still wrestles with last night's corpse, she being of course the shapely chanteuse. The corpse, in turn, is George's arch-rival in the philosophy department. Seems the jumpers are all faculty members who have found gymnism a fine way to keep in shape, or at least warm.

Last night's pianist turns up as the apartment house custodian and garbage collector, Crouch; the university vice chancellor, Archie, is also Dorothy's suspiciously solicitous

McCarter Review

psychiatrist, of whom she is much in need, one way and another, owing to George's impenetrable preoccupation with the nature of good.

From Scotland Yard comes Inspector Bones to investigate last night's murder and pay homage to his favorite singing star, Dorothy, who in the nick of time has been relieved of the corpse by the surviving jumpers.

All of these stock burlesque characters are played with great skill, intelligence, sophistication, and in deadly earnest.

Cast Credits. Barry Boys is unbelievably believable as the professor with the overstocked mind and the runaway tongue; Katharine McGrath is funny, eye-filling and brassy innocent as Dorothy; Jay Doyle appropriately cynical and tight-lipped as the vice-chancellor; Herbert Foster brings some originality to the prototypical detective; G Wood, rapidly becoming our favorite character actor, makes a small gem of the Jeeves-like custodian cum pianist; as the swinging secretary, Leslie Geraci, in her third role of the season (she was Simone Machard), shows us, literally, new sides of herself, and — along with Messrs. Boys, Doyle and Wood — reminds us how a resident acting group adds a whole new pleasure to theatregoing: that of seeing actors magically transform themselves from one character to its diametric opposite in a single season.

"Jumpers" takes some getting used to. One tends to listen too hard in Act I, fearful of missing something, of being swept downstream by George's erudite talk. And a defensive posture is not one in which to enjoy farce.

But gradually one discovers that the really good lines jump out like trout from a swollen stream. The rest is background: full of sound, and fuzzy; beautifully disorganized; sharpened and resharpened to pointlessness. Relax and let it glide by. Is there more to this brilliant, childish romp than meets the eye and ear? If not, isn't this a rather silly waste of writing and acting talents? Worry about all that later. What meets the eye and ear is more than enough to give you a highly entertaining evening.

MONTEITH & RAND

Comedy Tonight. "An evening of high hilarity" is the way McCarter Theatre describes the forthcoming appearance of John Monteith and Suzanne Rand on Friday, December 28, at 8.

Without costumes, props or scenery — except for a pair of director's chairs and a piano — they will present a variety of characters, including game show contestants, snooty film critics, deaf disco dancers and a pair of transsexuals who discover they were once married to each other.

They've been compared to Nichols and May. "Time" Magazine even called them "the funniest, most inventive comedy team to come along in years."

As part of their performance, they ask members of the audience to supply a setting and a couple of sentences. Working from there, they improvise a sketch.

After the performance, McCarter Associates will be host at a champagne reception for its members and the two performers. Purchase of a special $15 ticket will enable a member of the Associates to obtain a front-center orchestra seat, admission to the reception and a chance to meet Monteith and Rand.

Two One-Acters by Tennessee Williams
Being Presented by Community Players

SUDDENLY - LAST SUMMER: In this scene from "Suddenly Last Summer," one of the short Tennessee Williams dramas now on Community Players' stage, Lila Howley is seen as Mrs. Venable. The plays, combined as "Garden District," will play two more weekends at the PCP Playhouse, 171 Broadmead.

(S. Michael Schnessel photo)

Tennessee Williams's view of women is anything but adoring, though he is certainly fascinated by them. Throughout his work, his strongest, most magnetic (even if not particularly alluring) characters are often snobby, unhinged, deluded, and vulnerable Southern women -- and the women in "Something Unspoken" and "Suddenly Last Summer," the two one-act plays currently running at the Princeton Community Players' Broadmead Theatre, are no exception.

Both plays are directed by Nick Procaccino and are set in the wealthy Garden District of New Orleans. Both revolve around proud, imperial, warped old women who have created their own loneliness.

"Something Unspoken," the shorter and less subtle of the two, is about the relationship of the forbiddingly majestic Miss Cornelia Scott (June Cawley) with her timid secretary-companion Grace Lancaster (Celia Munro-Jones) and with her social peers. Cornelia attempts to break down the walls that set her off from others even while she is erecting new ones.

She complains about the "something unspoken" between Grace and herself, and Grace tries to oblige her by speaking out. But it seems that some things are better left unspoken -- or are simply unspeakable.

An Overriding Stiffness. "Something Unspoken" is really a scant skit of a play, and it is not quite realized in this production. Both characters seem even stiffer than their discomfort with each other would suggest, and the audience is made to feel the awkwardness of their relationship too directly. I felt relieved when it was over.

"Suddenly Last Summer" is more fully fleshed than "Something Unspoken." It, too, is about a rich, aging, formidably strong woman, Mrs. Violet Venable (Lila Howley), and shows her over-attachment to her recently deceased middle-aged son Sebastian.

This is the situation: every summer for 25 years, even when her husband was dying, Mrs. Venable and her son travelled abroad together, more like companions than mother and son, each denying their advancing age. Out of each trip, her son wrote a poem -- one poem a year. But last summer, her son chose to go abroad with his lovely young cousin Catharine Holly

Players Review

(Rachelle Craig), leaving his mother behind.

Sebastian dies, and Cathy returns with an incredible and lurid tale of the circumstances of his death -- which Mrs. Venable refuses to believe. She shuts away Cathy in an institution, and now has lured a Dr. Cukrowicz (Steven Nelson) with the prospect of a Sebastian Venable Memorial Foundation Grant if he will perform a lobotomy on her niece in order to prevent her from further discrediting her son's chaste and poetic reputation.

A Remarkable Performance. Rachelle Craig's performance as the lovely, shaken niece is nothing short of remarkable -- and remarkably tender and sympathetic for a Williams character. The play gets the minute she walks into the garden, and while the other performances are competent, they cannot help but pale next to hers.

Lila Howley is young but appropriately steely as Mrs. Venable. Barbara Herzberg gives a characteristically appealing performance as Mrs. Holly, a mother torn between her dependence on her benefactress-sister-in-law and her loyalty to her daughter. Kate La Van plays the stern Sister Felicity, Paul Shapiro the ambitious George Holly, and Marie Bograd the taken-for-granted Miss Foxhill.

In both "Something Unspoken" and "Suddenly Last Summer," the theatre-in-the-round staging gives the audience the feeling that they are spying on private gardens and intimate scenes through a profusion of hanging and potted plants (set by Dick Newman). The two plays make a logical pair as "Garden District," though as in most double-features, one half of the show is partially obscured by the impact of the more powerful mate.

AUDITIONS SCHEDULED

By Community Players. Casting calls are out for the pair of short plays to be given in mid-January by Princeton Community Players. Auditions will be held at the PCP theatre, 171 Broadmead, this Monday from 7:30 until 10. If you want to audition, you are asked to call 921-2339.

"Reel to Reel" is Mark Schaeffer's winning play in the 1979 Community Players playwriting contest. A drama about a sound operator in a recording studio and his tenuous love-affair with a young singer, it calls for five adult males and two females, one of whom must be a singer. S. Michael Schnessel will direct.

The second play, "A Happy Journey to the Skin of Our Town," by Norman Hart, is a satire on the works of Thornton Wilder. Cast requirements are two adult females and one adult male. Joel Geller will direct.

Performance dates for the double bill will be January 11 and 12 and 18 and 19. The presentation is sponsored in part by a grant from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts.

BERGMAN, HERZOG

Directing Two Films. Ingmar Bergman, represented by "Autumn Sonata," and Werner Herzog, represented by his film "Aguirre" will be this week's directors of the Movies-from-McCarter films to be shown at the Playhouse starting this Thursday and continuing through Wednesday. Subscribers to the series may attend the double feature next Monday and Tuesday.

In "Autumn Sonata," Ingrid Bergman -- speaking Swedish on the screen for the first time in many years -- portrays a concert pianist visiting her daughter, played by Liv Ullmann, to renew their relationship. The film's central sequence is a 30-minute mutual confession, by the two principal characters which critics have compared to the most intense sequences in such Bergman classics as "Cries and Whispers" and "Persona."

"Aguirre," from 1973, was shot entirely in Peru. It deals with Spanish conquistadors searching the Andes in 1560 for the mythical El Dorado. The film has been described as a meditation on history, and an image of the will to power run berserk.

"Autumn Sonata" will be the first film each evening, with a 7:30 showing.

'STAIRCASE' PLANNED

At Montgomery High. The Montgomery Players, under the direction of Mrs. Isohel Clowes, will present "Up the Down Staircase," by Bel

Kaufman, the story about a new teacher facing the challenge of teaching at a large metropolitan high school.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. on December 13, 14, and 15 in the Montgomery High School Auditorium. Tickets are $2 for students, $2.50 for adults, and will be sold at the door.

'MIKADO' CONTINUES

For 2nd Weekend. The Princeton Ion College Theatre will present "The Mikado," a comic opera by W. S. Gilbert

TO SING 'MESSIAH'

In Vesper Service. Handel's "Messiah" (Part I) will be performed on Sunday, December 16, at 2:30 in the Princeton University Chapel by the Princeton University Chapel Choir, and Chamber Orchestra. Prof. Walter Nollner, Director of Chapel Music, will conduct.

The Chapel Choir and Chamber Orchestra, with soloists, will perform the Christmas portion of the "Messiah," with the traditional addition of the Hallelujah chorus, as part of the annual Christmas Vesper Service. The service is free, and open to the public.

Parts II and III of the "Messiah" will be performed during Lent (February 29 and March 1, 1980) by the Princeton University Glee Club, and Chamber Orchestra, Prof. Nollner, conductor.

CHRISTMAS CONCERT SET

By University Gospel Group. The Princeton University Gospel Ensemble will present a Christmas Concert on Saturday, December 15, at 8 in the Princeton University Chapel. Conducted by Gerald Folkes, the Choir will sing an assortment of seasonal spiritual selections in both traditional and contemporary arrangements. Billy Hunter and Ernest Wormley of the Trenton area will accompany.

The Choir consists of approximately 40 University students. Officers are Morie Borum '80, President; Vanessa Payne '81, vice-president; K. David Holmes, Jr. '80, treasurer, and Rosemarie Burnett '82, secretary. The choir provides a musical and spiritual outlet through Gospel music.

The Christmas Concert is co-sponsored by the Chapel Music Department and the Office of the Dean of the Chapel. Admission is free, and the public is invited.

LATIN MASS PLANNED

At Choir College. A Latin Mass will be celebrated Sunday at 8 p.m. at Westminster Choir College with a Gregorian Chant Proper and the Ordinary of the Mass, the "Missa Brevis" of Zoltan Kodaly, sung by the Westminster Oratorio Choir.

The Rev. Gerard Farrell will be the celebrant of the Mass. Dr. Erik Routley, the homilist. Both are members of the Westminster Church Music Faculty. A Gregorian Chant Choir will be under the direction of William Dalglish, and the Oratorio Choir, Allen Crowell, conductor, will be directed on this occasion by Anthony Celentano.

Kodaly's "Missa Brevis" was written in 1945 for the 35th anniversary of his marriage to Emma Sandor and dedicated to her. Emma Kodaly was a talented composer in her own right who studied with him in 1905-06 and spent her life promoting the genius of her husband. The first performance of the work took place in the basement of the Budapest Opera House where the Kodalys along with other artists had taken refuge from the ravages of the last few months of World War II.

Music in Princeton

Saturday, December 20, 21, and 22 at 8 in Procter Hall, Princeton University.

This year's concert will include traditional boychoir music by Franck, Constantini, Mozart, Durufle and Kodaly. During the second half, the choir will sing familiar Christmas music in an informal atmosphere, and the audience will be invited to join in some popular carols.

Tickets are available from The Boychoir School of Princeton, 924-5858, at $5 and $3 for children under 12.

DOUBLE CONCERTS SET

By N.J. Symphony. The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra will open its 1979-1980 Princeton season on Wednesday evening, December 12, with two concerts. There will be a seasonal program of all-Baroque music at McCarter Theatre and at Princeton High School, a program of orchestral music especially selected for area middle and upper school students.

The orchestra can play in two different places on the same evening because Baroque music calls for fewer musicians. An augmented orchestra can split into two groups of about 40 players each and two separate Princeton area audiences can each hear music on the same evening.

Music Director Thomas Michalak will conduct the McCarter program opening with Purcell's Trumpet Voluntary and featuring J.S. Bach's Suite No. 3 in D Major, Corelli's Concerto Grosso No. 8 in G Minor ("Christmas") Op. 6, and Vivaldi's Concerto No. 4 in F Minor "Winter" from "The Four Seasons," Op. 8. The concert begins at 8:30 p.m.

For ticket information, call the McCarter Theatre box office 921-8700. Although the symphony series is heavily subscribed, single tickets are generally available at the box office. Subscribers who cannot attend are urged to make their tickets available for re-sale by calling McCarter.

At Princeton High School auditorium, the NJSO's assistant conductor George Marriner Mull will lead the "Sinfonietta" in Handel's Concerto for Harp, Strings & Continuo, Haydn's Symphony No. 22 ("The Philosopher"), Warlock's Capriol Suite for Strings, Handel's Suite from the Water Music, and Vaughn-Williams' Fantasy on Greensleeves for Flute, Harp and Strings. The concert, played without intermission, will begin at 8:15 and end around 9:30.

Tickets priced at $1 for students and seniors may be purchased in advance at area schools. Tickets at the door will cost $2 and $4 for adults. All seats are unreserved. This special concert, assisted by the PTO, is made possible by grants from the Mobil Foundation, Inc., the Charles S. Robinson Music Fund (Princeton Bank & Trust Company, trustee), by friends of young people's concerts and the Princeton Area Chapter of the NJSO League. For further information, call Polly Miller, 921-8139, or Mrs. Harriet Vawter, 921-0295.

Free Jazz Concert

The Princeton University Jazz Ensemble will present its annual Fall concert at Saturday at 8 in Alexander Hall. Admission is free.

The Ensemble is under the direction of Jim Capolupo, an alto player. He will direct the two bands in the music of Thad Jones, Toshiko Akiyoshi and others.

The Ensemble, now in its seventh year, has expanded to three bands this year. Although the 'C' band will not perform in this concert, it was created because of the Ensemble's philosophy of being open to all students interested in learning and performing jazz music.

This promises to be another successful and enjoyable concert, and we hope all will be able to attend.

He will demonstrate the capabilities of the school's theater organ in a program of popular and classical music. Selections will include "Morning" from the "Peer Gynt Suite" by Edvard Grieg and "Seventy-six Trombones" from the "Music Man," as well as seasonal music.

What kind of man owns his own computer?

Rather revolutionary, the idea of owning a computer? Not if your time means money. Because an Apple personal computer can help you make more of it.

Apple manages data, crunches numbers, keeps records, processes information and prints reports.

It's also less expensive than timesharing. More dependable than distributed processing. More flexible than centralized EDP. And less than $2500 (as shown).

Why not join the personal computer revolution by visiting us today?

'YEAR OF THE CHILD'
Marked by Exhibit at Squibb. The Squibb Gallery will mark the International Year of the Child with a mixed media exhibition by Eleanor Hubbard. "A Balanced World" will be on view through January 6.

Ms. Hubbard, who lives on Martha's Vineyard, Mass., has shown her work extensively throughout the northeast United States and Europe. Using mediums ranging from paper collage to polychrome steel, she creates a separate, light-hearted world populated with a variety of characters.

Humor, spontaneity and freshness are important parts of Ms. Hubbard's work, but her primary artistic concerns are balance, symmetry and anti-symmetry. Many of her creations are positioned on tightropes—some poised confidently, others dangling precariously. Although she stresses the happier side of her alternate population. She reminds viewers of her serious intent by placing her characters in curious predicaments or by painting unexpected fangs in their broad smiles.

Art Classes Invited. Art teachers are invited to hold their classes in the Squibb Gallery during the current exhibition. Squibb is inviting one morning and one afternoon art class each week-day through December 31 and on Friday, January 4. Teachers may reserve dates by calling Michael Perez, Squibb external relations manager, at 921-4263.

Mr. Perez will offer a brief introductory explanation of the International Year of the Child and provide, at the teacher's option, a related art film and a questionnaire on the exhibit for the students. A set of 16 UNICEF posters highlighting children from around the world will also be supplied by Squibb on request for classroom use before the gallery visit. There is no charge for any of the sessions. The Squibb Gallery is located in the world headquarters of E.R. Squibb & Sons, Inc., the international pharmaceutical company, on Route 206 three miles south of Princeton.

One of the most unbelievable records ever made in football is this one: There's a man who played in the National Football League for 13 years, gained over 9,000 yards on pass receptions, scored 68 touchdowns, and — amazingly — FUMBLE ONLY ONCE IN HIS ENTIRE 13-YEAR CAREER ... The man who made this incredible record was Raymond Berry ... Berry was a receiver for the Colts from 1955 through 1967 and had only one fumble in those 13 years.

Did you know that ABC-TV pays the National Football League almost 3-million dollars PER GAME for the right to televise the Monday night football games ... ABC pays the NFL 46-million dollars for the 16 Monday night games.

I bet you didn't know ... that our $10,000 deductible major medical with a $250,000 limit could cost a man age 50, wife age 48 and two children as little as $240 per year.

Only 7 coaches in the history of major-college football have ever won over 200 games ... You'd think in all this time, there'd be more coaches who won over 200 games, but that's all there are ... How many of the 7 can you name? ... They are Eddie Anderson, Bear Bryant, Woody Hayes, Jess Neely, Amos Alonzo Stagg, Pop Warner and Warren Woodson.

Tiger Hockey Team, Off to Impressive Start, Faces Northeastern, B.U. Here This Weekend

Princeton University's hockey team lost its first game in four last week when it bowed to Maine on the Black Bears' ice, 4 to 2, but in winning their first three, including two in the Ivy League, the Tigers accomplished almost as much in the first 12 days of their season as they did all last winter.

A spectacular 4-3 overtime conquest of Yale, in which they never led until the winning goal was scored, gave them two victories and four points in the Ivy League standings. That matched their total number of victories all last year and put them within a point of their final total, which included one for a wild 7-7 tie with Harvard. Overall, they began the week with a 3-1 mark, needing just three more victories this season to top last winter's total of five.

year, 10-4, on their way to a 12-15 season.

B.U. shut out Princeton last winter, 4-0, its line 21-7-2 record qualifying it for the eastern playoffs, in which the Terriers are always one of the top teams. It has been 11 years since the first team Bill Quackenbush coached gave Princeton its last triumph winter's total of five.

was afforded no protection and a few minutes later on a one-on-one breakaway. He blocked the first shot but no teammate was there to cover the rebound which the Elis' Jim Steiner stuffed into the open cage for the first of his two goals.

It took the home team until 7:56 of the middle round to get on the board, its goal also coming on a breakaway. It was engineered by sophomore wing Kevin Behan, who skated in from the right and beat the Yale goalie on the left from the crease.

The 2-1 deficit was erased at 2:13 of the third period by another sophomore, center Ray Casey, whose short-handed goal was a work of art. The Coleraine, Minn., resident stole the puck near the Yale cage from a defenseman, circled past him and flicked it into the left corner. It was his fourth goal in three games.

The visitors went ahead again at 3-2 three minutes later on another shot from the slot, but it was the only goal they made in the last 51 minutes of play as Princeton largely maintained control after its poor start. The Orange and Black drew even for the second time at 13:47, defenseman Todd Hewitt passing across the ice to sophomore center Chuck Huggins, whose sharp shot from 25 feet out angled inside the right post.

Uphill All the Way. A 2-0 deficit incurred by desultory play in the first period put the Tigers at a disadvantage for nearly 50 minutes of their game here with Yale last week. Defensive lapses helped beat freshman goalie Ron Dennis twice, once on a 25-foot shot from the slot on which he

Young Princeton Quintet, Learning Painfully, Nears Its Only Two December Games in Jadwin

After a second highly-difficult road trip this Wednesday, to face nationally-ranked Duke at Durham, N.C., Princeton's young basketball team will play its first game of the season in Jadwin Gym Saturday against Northeastern. The Tigers' only other home appearance for another month is scheduled on Monday when highly-regarded Villanova will play here. Both games start at 8, with the latter to be televised on Channels 23 and 52.

Because the Tigers in other years have not played against the caliber of the first three teams they meet this season with personnel largely lacking in varsity experience, they are about to start with an 0-3 record for the first time since 1953. Having lost to Michigan State, 60-46, and Oral Roberts, 70-62, at St. John's last weekend, they are hardly expected to contain Duke, which figures to finish among the top ten nationally.

It was greatly to the youthful Tigers' credit that they stayed with both their conquerors last week well into the second half. Both had to come from behind, Michigan State, the 1979 national champions, trailing by as much as 42-35 early in the second half.

Because junior Randy Melville hit at better than a point a minute when the game began (15 after 12:28), the Tigers controlled the early going, but left the floor no better than tied at 31 at the intermission. The game was, however, being played at their tempo.

Slow Finish. Eventually, lack of experienced depth proved costly, the mistakes that a young squad will make while learning were a factor, and the Spartans pulled away to a comfortable margin. The losers managed only four points in the last 11:39 minutes. Next night, however, Michigan State lost to St. John's (which reached the final by running past Oral Roberts, 90-78), by a margin of 88-73.

Captain Johnny Rogers added 12 points to Melville's 15 (the PDS alumnus being blanked for the final 28 minutes.) A 14-for-24 performance at the line was of no help.

7th in '78, Tigers Had 5 All-Ivy Choices; 2nd This Fall, They Placed 2 in Football

Last year, Princeton's football team finished seventh in the Ivy League and placed five players on the all-star team selected by the eight coaches. This fall, the Tigers moved all the way up to a second-place tie and had only two of their number chosen.

While last-place Penn placed no one, only Columbia, this year's seventh-place tenant, failed to have more than two members of its team chosen. Yale, the 1979 champion, and Brown, which Princeton tied for runner-up honors, each had five players named out of 24 so honored (11 on each unit, plus a place-kicker on offense and a punter on defense).

Dartmouth is represented by four, Cornell and Harvard by three apiece. The obvious answer is that whereas the Tigers had less standout athletes this fall (two offensive linemen, a running back, a defensive lineman and the punter made it a year ago), they moved up faster than any other team in the league because they had far better balance and depth than last year.

The two Tigers chosen were center Ted Sotir (who won the Poe Cup here for outstanding play and leadership) and Larry Van Pelt, the sophomore fullback. Sotir is a senior, while Van Pelt has the honor of being the only member of his class named to the offensive team.

That kind of recognition fell to tailback Cris Crissy a year ago, when he became the first Princeton sophomore in 22 years to be selected. Crissy, whose total yardage and point-production declined this season, was named to the second team on offense with Mark Bailey, the guard who is a co-captain elect for 1980. Matt McGrath, defensive tackle and co-captain this year, was on second team defense, while honorable mention went to quarterback Steve Reynolds, defensive end Paul Van Pelt (next year's co-captain with Bailey), defensive back Dave Chandler and punter Ken Buck.

Princeton Hockey

Princeton's ability to dominate as the game progressed and the highly-cautious play of Mark Rodriguez in the Yale goal, as he smothered numerous slow shots rather than clear them to a teammate, seemed to augur well for the Tigers' fortunes in sudden death. They converted their potential superiority to reality at 1:05, Casey winning the draw on a faceoff to the right of the Bulldogs' goal, passing back to junior Dave Tweedy, who whistled the puck into the top of the far corner.

Dennis was credited with 34 saves, 16 of them in the third period, putting his goals allowed total at eight for a fine 2.8 average. After his play against Holy Cross and Dartmouth, he was named ECAC goalie and rookie of the week, sharing the honors with Bob Barrich, who will be in the nets Saturday for B.U. His play has been a decisive factor in Princeton's ability to earn a 3-0 record for the first time since 1961.

A 2-0 deficit after two periods in the game at Orono Friday was more than the Tigers could overcome. They narrowed the gap to 2-1 early in the final round but yielded two more before scoring again with seven seconds left. Freshman Jim Matthews and sophomore Sean Sherman made the Princeton goals.

Princeton Basketball

Problems in the latter part of the second half also cost the possibility of an upset Saturday against Oral Roberts. Princeton trailed, 27-22, capped a seven-point surge with a jumper by forward Neil Christel to take a 29-28 lead and held a 35-34 margin at the intermission.

The lead continued to ding-dong back and forth, but with nine minutes to go, the victors moved in front to stay. With a 56-51 advantage and 6:39 left, they began a freeze which Princeton found little success in trying to solve. Melville hit double figures again with 14, and was matched by freshman Craig Robinson.

Duke, 22-8 last year and co-champion in the tough Atlantic Coast Conference, has never lost to Princeton in the 12-game series. The Blue Devils will get most of their production from Mike Gminski, a 6-11 center, who averaged 18.8 points last winter and will tower above anybody the Tigers use under the boards. Northeastern Saturday may provide the Orange and Black with its first victory. The Huskies (13-13 last year) return a veteran team with nine lettermen-guard Pete Harris averaged 22 points a game last year--but New England is overall the weakest basketball region in the U.S.

Villanova, Monday's opponent, is the best of a strong Big Five hornet's nest in Philadelphia. The Wildcats, no better than 15-13 in a tough schedule last winter, won their league title with a 9-1 mark and return 10 lettermen against the loss of two. Alex Bradley, a 6-6 forward, is the best of numerous standout players.

The week ahead will finish with games in New York--against Fordham next Wednesday and Manhattan the following Saturday. That will be the last of the action until the Christmas trip, when the team heads for the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii preceded by a game against the University of San Francisco on December 21.

--Donald C. Stuart

TWO COACHES OUT

Dropped By Navarro. Warren Harris, who had been a member of the Princeton football coaching staff for 18 years, and Len Rivers, the native Princetonian who arrived on campus with Bob Casciola in 1973, will not continue as part of Frank Navarro's program Harris is job hunting. Rivers will presumably remain here to coach varsity baseball, although there were rumors last spring that he might not be continued in that capacity.

The move to replace Harris on the staff was a surprise to those associated with the sport here, although it had been understood that his position on the staff would be reexamined at the end of each season. Navarro told Harris, who was defensive end and linebacker coach for the Tigers, that he wanted to find someone "with a different style." Selection of a successor is anticipated in a matter of weeks because every member of the staff shares in recruiting responsibilities, an assignment that begins intensively as soon as the season is over.

Harris, a Princeton Junction resident, had served here under four coaches--Dick Colman, Jake McCandless, Casciola and Navarro. A 1943 graduate of the Missouri Valley College, he had made a career of coaching in football and basketball. He was at Rutgers in the late '50s under John Stiegman, a former assistant here, and when Stiegman went to Penn, Harris was on his staff there for two years before joining Colman in 1961.

Rivers, a Princeton High School graduate in 1951, had coached primarily at the high school level before coming here six years ago to coach the offensive line under Casciola. More recently, he had been an assistant to Dan White, coach of the Princeton freshmen. He has been baseball coach for the past five years.

PDS Basketball Team Is Aiming for State-Wide Ranking

The Princeton Day Basketball team is shooting for the stars this year, and may just reach them if all the pieces fall into place.

One of the top prep teams in the state for several years now, the Panthers have set their sights on a state wide ranking, something never before achieved by a PDS team in any sport. This will pit Princeton Day against some of the best high schools in the state.

Beginning his ninth season as the Panthers' head coach, Alan Taback has achieved remarkable success at a school not necessarily cut out to be a basketball power. Taback took over the coaching duties in 1972 at a time when PDS had never come close to winning half the games on its schedule in four years at the varsity level.

In his first year, the Panthers won 14 and lost 6, and have improved on that in every season except one against increasingly tougher opponents. In 1974 the Panthers won their first of five consecutive State Prep Titles in the "B" Division, before losing to Rutgers Prep last year in the finals. Overall Princeton Day teams have won 144 and lost 44 under Taback.

Recruiting Pays Off. Taback's recruiting efforts, especially in the Trenton area, have paid off handsomely the past few seasons, and this year he is hoping to hit the jackpot. Taback feels his players have the talent and experience to make this team the best ever, and they certainly will have the chance to prove it.

East Orange, Orange (No. 3 in the state last year), Our Lady of the Valley (Parochial B state champs last year) and Trenton High have been added to an already challenging schedule.

"I feel we can play with anybody," says Taback. "The task at hand is clear, the next step is doing it."

Unfortunately, there has already been an initial setback to Taback's plans. Forward Randy Shelton recently broke a bone in his hand and will be out approximately four weeks. PDS has some big games early in the schedule, and its strength off the bench will be of prime importance.

One of the Panthers' major assets will be experience. Many of the players on this veteran squad, which includes eight seniors, three juniors and only one freshman, will be playing together for the fourth consecutive year. This has got to bolster the kind of team-oriented offense and defense that Taback has always stressed.

Tri-captain Carl Hill is the team's floor leader. A pre-season choice for all-American, the 6-1 senior should be one of the outstanding guards in the country. He led the Panthers' in scoring last year. Another tri-captain James Cox was slated to team with Hill in the backcourt, but may be moved back to forward, where he played last year, while Shelton is sidelined. An incredibly quick athlete, Cox specializes in stopping the opposing team's leading scorer, but still manages to score in double figures consistently.

In the front court, will be another tri-captain, Jamie Bartolomei, 6'6", the team's leading rebounder. Tim Murdoch will also see action at the forward slot. He has performed well in two recent scrimmages, especially on defense.

PDS Transfer. The center position will be manned by Princeton High transfer Shaun Tobin, who at 6'6" gives PDS some added height in the line-up. An aggressive player with excellent shooting ability, Tobin needs work on his defense.

Senior letterman Vince Pocino, a starter last season, will either start as Hills' running mate in the backcourt or come off the bench to provide strong defensive play and calm ball-handling.

Other reserves include Bill Ross, Bob Leahy, Jamie Bonini, Mike Leahy and Reggie Reese, an outstanding young Trenton junior high player.

In preparation for the season's opener this Friday in the Peddie tournament, PDS has already played four scrimmages against good high school teams, St. Anthony's of Jersey City, rated 12th in the country last year, Montclair High, Ewing and West Philadelphia. Taback likes what he sees so far, but feels his players must cut down on turnovers and the number of fouls on defense.

The Peddie Tournament will feature eight prep schools, including Hun, Adelphi, Chestnut Hill, Lawrenceville, Rutgers Prep, and one other in addition to the host school and PDS. Peddie will unveil a couple of tall post graduate players, one a seven-footer, the other 6'9, and this makes them look like the favorite, at least on paper.

PDS is hoping to improve on last year's performance when it lost to Hun 44-39 in the semifinals.

zoni, 5-9, and Keith Duvin, 5-10. Both are guards and both earned a berth on the varsity near the end of last year's season. Two other seniors are Tom Zahn, 5-10 and 5-11 Jeff Harley, both up from the jayvees, both guards.

Those four are pretty well set as starters, Leete reported. "The fifth spot is pretty much up in the air." Four contenders are senior Matt Roach, 5-11, two, 5-9 juniors up from the jayvee team. Scott Darvin and Jerry Barbero, and freshman Paul Franzoni. Franzoni is also 5-9.

No Team Leader. "It's a decent team but no one is a tested "star" in the sense Powell or Payton was. No one can carry the team. It will have to be a five to eight man effort each game," said Leete.

In scrimmages against Florence, West Windsor and Montgomery, Leete reported his squad "did okay. We had some good quarters and some bad quarters."

By necessity, he commented, Hun will have to play a different brand of basketball this campaign. Hun, he said, is going to have to try to control the tempo of each game. Without height there will be fewer rebounds which means the Raiders will not be able to run. "We're going to try to be aggressive," said Leete.

After the home opener this Wednesday afternoon at 4 against Hill, Hun will defend its Peddie Tournament title, beginning Friday. Teams from this area participating in addition to Hun are Princeton Day School, Lawrenceville and Peddie. Others are Rutgers Prep, Adelphi from New York and Chestnut Hill and Penn Charter from Pennsylvania.

School basketball coach Dave Leete may be forgiven if he thinks his fate this year isn't a little bit extreme.

Last year, Raider fans will recall that it was 6-2 Arvie Powell, the 1,000-point post-grad from Ewing who led Hun to the N.J. Independent Prep School Class A state championship, the championship of the eight-team Peddie Invitational Tournament and a 15-10 overall mark. The previous four years it was the incomparable 6-5 Ron Payton, who scored more than 2,000 points in his career at Hun, who allowed the Raiders to come charging onto the court with all flags flying.

And this year? Would you believe not a single player six feet tall. Not a single forward or center among Leete's first eight players. Not a single player with any extensive varsity experience.

"We have no height at all. We've never been quite this short," said Leete. His co-captains are Garrett Fran-

Tuesday Hun will be at Solebury. The busy start will continue — two days later, Hun will participate in the Hill Tournament. Small or not, Hun is going to have to grow up in a hurry.

WOMEN FINISH SIXTH

In Field Hockey. Four days of intensive play on fields east of Palmer Stadium came to an end Saturday in the national Women's Intercollegiate Field Hockey Championships. The finals were played on Clarke Field, with Long Beach State (California) winning Division I, Southwest Missouri Division II and Shippensburg State (Pennsylvania) Division III.

Princeton, coached by Betty Logan, placed sixth in a strong Division I field of 16 teams. The Tigers were eliminated from the championship bracket on the first day when they lost to Penn State, 3-0, but then defeated Oregon, 1-0, Davis and Elkins in overtime, 3-2, and San Jose State, 3-1, before losing, 1-0 to William and Mary.

The Tigers finished with a 12-6-1 record, winning seven of their games by shutouts. Goalie Sue Kohler set a Princeton record with 112 saves during the season, a figure that is also a career record despite the fact that she still has two years left in college.

TOURNAMENT IN SQUASH

In Jadwin This Weekend. The second annual Invitational Women's Intercollegiate Squash Tournament will be held Friday through Sunday in Jadwin Gymnasium under University sponsorship. Betty Constable, coach of the women's team at Princeton, is tournament chairman.

First-round matches will begin at 6 Friday, with play continuing Saturday at 10 and 4, consolation finals Sunday at 10 and the championship final an hour later. Among the players from 10 competing colleges will be Gail Ramsay of Penn State, three-time U.S. Intercollegiate champion.

Ramsay is seeded first, ahead of three Princeton entrants: Nancy Gengler '80, a former national women's champion and current Princeton captain; Kris Kinney '81, the defending champion in the tournament; and Joan Maguire '81. Sue Foster '80 is the fourth Princeton player entered.

FUNDS SOUGHT To Continue Tennis Program. The Princeton Community Tennis Program is launching a special gifts campaign, led by Richard Hargraves and George Vaughn, trustees of the Youth Tennis Foundation of Princeton. In need of funds if it is to continue, the Princeton Community Tennis Program is a non-profit service organization and the center for tennis instruction and activity in the greater Princeton area. For 25 years, the program has provided classes for juniors and adults, scholarships, free clinics, league play, tournaments and sanctioned events. Supporters of the Princeton Tennis Program will soon receive a letter of appeal in the mail.

Hunninghake Again

On a day the Philadelphia Eagles clinched a playoff berth in the National Football League, Princeton's Michael Hunninghake clinched a trip to Tampa, Florida, to compete in the AFC-NFL Divisional Point, Pass and Kick competition.

Hunninghake, the only back-to-back PP&K national champion — he won as both an 8 and 9-year old — will vie with 11 other finalists in the 10-year old division at the Tampa Bay-Kansas City game December 16.

He will be accompanied this year by another PP&K area victor, Tom Newton of Skillman, who triumphed in the 12-year old division. Both are representing the Eagles and the Nassau-Conover Motor Company.

Survivors of the Divisional competition in Tampa will advance to the national PP&K finals January 20 at Super Bowl XIV.

Volunteers Foundation of Joint Agencies

Citizen volunteers, appointed by the governing bodies, are the foundation of all the joint agencies. They determine the direction they want the agency to take, and a professional director — except for Aging and, temporarily, the Planning Board — runs the store.

The state law that allows regional health commissions has no provision for wiping out local health boards, so Borough and Township still have their own boards, which do little except provide people to appoint to the Regional Health Commission. Dr. Margaret M. Junker, a member of the Borough Board of Health, is chairman of the joint commission. Other members are Louise Bessire (Borough), Margaret Sprout (Township), Marjorie Smith (Township) and alternates Charlotte Gipson, Evelyn Geddes (both Borough), Barbara Lependorf and Melvin A. Benarde (both Township).

Borough Board of Health members, in addition to those named above, are Helen M. Bess and Dr. Derrill I. McGuigan. Township Board of Health members besides those on the Regional Commission, are Margaret Broadwater and Carl Hoyler.

Although the Planning Board is supposed to have 14 members — equally divided — it has been shy one Borough member for several years and is now lacking two. Mayor Robert W. Cawley has been trying to obtain representation from the business community without success. It is not easy to find Planning Board members: hours are long; work is arduous, technical and painstakingly done.

Borough members are Margen Penick (chairman), Wendy Benchley, Nancy T. Myers, Charles Cornforth and Mayor Cawley. Township members are Hans K. Sander, Constance Greiff, Ralph Phillips, Jerome Rose, Elizabeth Hutter, Hugo Hoogenboom and Mayor Josie Hall.

Daniel F. Sullivan is chairman of the Joint Commission on Aging. Members are George T. Geary, Helen W. Sherman, Joseph Procaccino, M. Elizabeth Moore, Anne E. Truitt, Lynn Maher, Morris Forer and Ruby Campbell.

The Joint Commission on Civil Rights members are John K. Bleimaier, chairman; Priscilla A. Waring, Alfred O. Campbell, William H. Scheide, Jacqueline Swain, Max Blumenfeld, Beatrice Boyer, Martha Hartmann, Warren Huff Jr. and Thomas Lindenfeld. Mr. Campbell and Mr. Blumenfeld have been on the Commission since it was formed, ten years ago.

Agency Budgets

College and the rest of the campus and the Dinky station plans."

The board not only lacks a full-time professional, it now lacks an administrative coordinator, as well. The coordinator hired in the spring left last week. The board has budgeted $10,485 to $13,382 for her replacement. There is a full-time secretary at $10,000 and a part-timer at $4.50 an hour.

A big 1980 budget item is $5,000 for printing. That will buy 400 copies of the new Master Plan in three colors for $3,200, plus a stripped-down 10,000 copies for mailing to Princeton residences.

Resigned to what may be inevitable, the board is asking $3,000 for the litigation it suspects may follow adoption of The Plan. (The same sum, budgeted for this year, was not needed).

Money for the board's lawyer is a hoped-for $12,500, up $1,500 from 1979. There is $5,500 to prepare all the ordinances that will be needed to set the Master Plan in motion, $2,500 for special meetings, $1,440 for the shorthand reporter, for a legal total of $24,940.

AGING

Activities for Princeton's senior citizens are dispersed among many agencies — Recreation, the Housing Authority, Crosstown 62, the Joint Commission on Aging.

This year, the Aging budget — met by equal contributions from Borough and Township — is $8,160, which includes $6,660 in salary for Jocelyn Helm, the Senior Citizens Resource Center co-ordinator. The rest of the budget is $1,500 — same as last year.

Most of it pays for the extra telephone in the Senior Citizens Resource Center in Lloyd Terrace, to help Mrs. Helm with the many calls she makes to state and county agencies concerned with the elderly.

There is money for subscriptions to periodicals dealing with senior citizens; travel money for Mrs. Helm, who is in demand as a resource person (but she's been known to pay her own way) and money for such special projects as soda for the annual Landau senior citizens picnic.

CIVIL RIGHTS

"I'm using carbon paper I've had six years," says Civil Rights Commission director Joan Hill, to illustrate frugality. Her joint agency is asking $2,325 for 1980, compared to $2,255 this year.

She is the only employee — earning $13,272 — but she and the Commission are asking for a part-time secretary. They have one in the summer, through CETA, and they think they can stretch this back into spring. That means the budget request is for September through December only, part-time, at a cost of $480.

There is $200 for what the Commission calls "consultants," although the money actually goes for dinner, transportation or lodging for various speakers. Asked by Borough and Township to say "what you'd cut first," civil Rights said they would trim — but not eliminate — this $200.

Through its volunteer Commissioners, Civil Rights can often have small printing or duplicating jobs done free or at cost, so printing amounts to very little and could be cut even from that, Ms. Hill says. But they need $125 in postage, instead of $75. Rent is free because the 4 Green Street office is in a Borough-owned building.

Since local telephone calls are now charged, for business firms, the request is $1,000 for the telephone bill instead of the present $900.

At a meeting this Monday, 8 p.m. in Borough Hall, citizens are invited to comment on joint budget requests. All these budgets are requests only. Public comment will help the two governing bodies decide what — if any — changes should be made.

CHRISTMAS PARTY...

At Rockingham. The Historical Society will hold its annual Christmas Party Sunday from 3-5 at "Rockingham." This early 18th century dwelling which was once used as General Washington's headquarters is located on Route 518 in Rocky Hill.

The program will feature a sample of colonial entertainment. Period music drawn from a repertoire of tunes that were popular in the new nation will be performed by John Burkhalter and Eugene Roan. Mr. Burkhalter studied early music at the New England Conservatory under Daniel Pinkham, and the recorder under Frans Bruegaard at Harvard.

Mr. Roan is Professor of Organ at the Westminster Choir College. He has performed extensively in the U.S. as well as Europe and will be playing on an English Bent-side Spinnet which was made by Richard Cox of Pennington and is based on a 1710 Thomas Hitchcock spinet at the Smithsonian Institute.

"Rockingham" and the Wallace House in Somerville are both offering Candlelight Tours on the two weekends before Christmas, Saturday and Sunday, from 3 to 6. The Stony Brook Garden Club of Princeton is furnishing the Christmas decorations for "Rockingham."

Playgrounds Open, But No Supervision

Yes, your child can enjoy a playground swing in any or all of Princeton's playgrounds next summer.

Recreation Department proposals for closing down five playgrounds mean only that supervised programs, with director and assistants and materials, would be eliminated. The five playgrounds themselves — Littlebrook, Hamilton Avenue, John Witherspoon School, Erdman and Pine — would remain open, with their standard equipment. Wading pools at Erdman and Pine would, however, be shut down.

If you're interested in the Recreation budget, you're invited to a public discussion of its contents at 9 p.m. Tuesday, December 18, in the Valley Road Building.

In last week's story on the Recreation Department budget, the name of Marvin Trotman was inadvertently omitted from the list of members of the Recreation Board. Mr. Trotman serves as a Borough representative.
